CITY TAXPAYERS MAY VOTE ON SEWERS IN FALL

Councilmen Expect To Consider Real Estate Board's Plea Monday Night

PLAN THRICE REJECTED

Municipal Legislators in Favor of Project, Interviews Disclose

Marion voters in all probability will be called upon to decide whether or not additional storm water sewers will be constructed in the city within the next year at the November election.

This was indicated today by members of City Council in commenting on the action taken Tuesday night by the Marion Real Estate Board in a resolution urging city legislators to take immediate action on the project. Councilmen, a survey showed, realize the need of additional storm water sewer service and are in favor of giving that service at the earliest possible time, a survey revealed.

Discussion Planned

It is expected that the matter of placing the question before the voters at the coming November election will be discussed at the next meeting of council Monday night.

No fear but what the idea would meet with the indorsement of the entire council was expressed by several members of that body today. "Council at all times has favored the building of additional storm water sewers to relieve the flooded conditions which follow each unusual heavy rain, but it has been the voters themselves, who have made the building of the sewers impossible," one of the councilmen said today.

On three previous occasions, efforts to pass legislation by a vote of the people to provide for the building of trunk line storm water sewers, have been defeated. The last time occurring several years ago when an effort was made to provide for the building of a trunk line storm water sewer, to be placed in the same trench with the sanitary trunk line sewer. Could it have been built at that time, thousands of dollars would have been saved, it was pointed out by councilmen today.

WILL FORCE HEADS TO PAY BACK BIG SALARIES

State Insurance Superintendent Takes Action After Court Decision

Columbus, June 23—William C. Safford, state superintendent of insurance, today was preparing plans designed to compel secretaries and managers of a number of mutual insurance concerns, operating in Ohio, to pay back into the treasuries of their respective companies portions of alleged excessive salaries and commissions.

This contemplated action is consistent with the decree issued by the Ohio Supreme Court here Wednesday upholding the action of the state insurance department in refusing to renew the licenses of the National Mutual Insurance and of the Celina Mutual Casualty Companies to operate in Ohio until E. J. Brookhart Celina, secretary and administrative officer of these concerns, paid back alleged excessive salary payments.

The supreme court ordered that, of the $202,000 he received during the past six years, Brookhart should pay back $112,600. The court permitted him to retain $90,000 on the basis of a $15,000 annual salary, it was stated.

The annual salaries of officials of similar companies, doing practically the same amount of business, are $2,000 each, it was claimed.

"It is evident that the court is of the opinion that any profits of a mutual insurance company belong to the policy holders and that earnings over a reasonable salary for officials and necessary operating expenses should be returned to the policyholders," declared Safford.

AVIATOR TAKES BLAME FOR CRASH OF PLANE

Two Lose Lives Off California Coast When Flier "Stubs Toe"

San Diego, June 23—Lieut. Thomas G. Fisher today voluntarily assumed the blame for the death of Lieut. Commdr. William S. Hactor and chief machinist's mate, Charles Robbins, naval officers, in a seaplane tragedy off Laguna Beach last Tuesday night. "I just stubbed my toe, that's all. I'll take all the blame," declared Lieutenant Fisher, the lone survivor.

Lieutenant Fisher survived after swimming for nine hours following the crash of the new PB-T Boeing type torpedo plane, which he and his two companions were flying from Seattle to the air base here. His companions were drowned.

A body believed to be that of Robbins was washed ashore at Newport Beach late yesterday.

Lieutenant Fisher said he had miscalculated his altitude, descending out of a fog to what he believed to be a 400-foot altitude. He skimmed the surface of the water and crashed. Both pontoons were knocked off and the seaplane sank a minute after the men secured their life belts.

"We kept close together in the water," Lieutenant Fisher said. "We made a solemn agreement to stick together no matter what happened. We figured it to be about six miles to shore and we swam together for an hour. Robbins, the better swimmer, then began to leave us behind.

"The water was terribly cold," Fisher continued. "After about three hours I suddenly missed Hactor. I circled around and called, but got no answer. Then I struck out alone."

BURGLARS' ATTEMPT TO BREAK OPEN SAFE FAILS

Knock Combination Off in Office of C. W. Leffler & Son, High-st

An unsuccessful attempt to break into the safe at the office of C. W. Leffler & Son, High-st, was discovered this morning when the office was opened. The combination had been broken from the safe door and whether the would-be safe crackers were frightened away before they could complete the opening of the safe door or whether they gave up the attempt, is not known, but the door had not been opened. Entrance to the building was gained by forcing the front door of the office. The attempted robbery was reported to the police.

RITES FOR JONES

Head of Sunday Creek Coal Co. Dies in Columbus Hospital

Columbus, June 23—Funeral services were being arranged here today for John Sutphin Jones, 78, president and chairman of the board of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., who died at a local hospital last night after an illness of six weeks from chronic nephritis.

Jones, born at Washington, D. C., had an eventful career as a railroad man and coal producer in the middle western states. He organized the Jones and Adams Coal Co. at Springfield, Ill., and was variously connected with the Wisconsin and Northern, Tavern and Golf, Southwest Air Line, Columbus and Hocking Railroads, and also developed a large acreage in Florida, in connection with the Southwest Air Line Railway.

Fresno Girl, Called "Sleeping Beauty," In Living Death; Unconscious 78 Days

FRESNO, Cal., June 23—A living death!

For the first time in the history of medicine, as far as local doctors know, a human being is actually undergoing that experience here. Clara Drummond, 21, has been mentally dead for 78 days, but she is physically alive and apparently normal.

The case has attracted widespread attention. Fresno physicians confess themselves baffled.

The patient is called "The Sleeping Beauty" because of her youth and beauty. The long period of coma has not affected her physical attractiveness.

Mrs. Drummond was found unconscious in a gas-filled room of her home here on April 4. She was taken to a private sanitarium, where she recovered physically from the effects of gas poisoning but failed to recover consciousness. Later she was transferred to the county hospital where her case is now being studied by county and private specialists.

Inhalation of gas atrophied certain brain cells which control consciousness, physicians explain. With these cells apparently dead, doctors see no hope of ever her regaining consciousness.

The cells controlling the purely mechanical operations of the body, such as breathing, digestion and circulation of the blood are apparent unimpaired by these operations continue normally.

MARION EAGLES WIN ADDITIONAL STATE HONORS

Receive Cash Awards Totaling $300 in Competitive Events at Youngstown

In addition to the distinction of having one of its members elected state president at the annual convention of the state aerie which closed at Youngstown yesterday, Buckeye Aerie, No. 237, Fraternal Order of Eagles of this city, won additional honors which brought it $300 in prize money.

This was the largest amount of cash awards going to any lodge at the state convention. The prizes totaling $3,000, were distributed after the big street parade held yesterday afternoon as the closing feature of the convention. The parade, said to be the largest ever held at a state meeting, included representatives of 100 lodges.

One Prize of $150

The $300 awarded Buckeye Aerie included a first prize of $150 for the lodge having the largest delegation accompanied by a band in the line of march. In making this award the judges took into consideration the distance between the home cities of the lodges and Tounstown. The Marion delegation, headed by Buckeye Aerie band, easily took first honors.

The Buckeye Aerie drum corps won first prize of $75 for presenting the most attractive appearance of all drum corps in the parade. It also took second prize of $75 in an exhibition drill contest, first honors in this competition going to the Toledo drum corps.

The special Erie train in which approximately 150 representatives of Buckeye Aerie went to the Youngstown convention yesterday morning arrived

STRIKE OF PRISONERS IN KANSAS CONTINUES

328 Convicts Still Barricaded in Coal Mine With 14 Guards

Lansing, Kan., June 23—The prisoners strike—"No cigarets, no coal"—in Kansas State Prison coal mine continued today.

Once only have the 328 convicts, who Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock barricaded themselves with 14 guards, communicated with the outside and that was for a brief time last night in which an unknown voice from the depths told Mine Supt. Peter Russell "the officers (guards) want to speak with their wives." The request was refused until Russell conferred with Acting Warden R. H. Hudspeth. The man in the mine did not call again.

Machine guns were posted throughout the prison yard today as an additional precaution if overhead rioting breaks out again.

Investigation of the cell house mutiny and riot which occurred at the time the miners sent up their ultimatume, "No cigarets, no coal," continued with the state board of prison administration assisting the warden's office.

Oats and corn in the mine are said to be of sufficient volume to keep the prisoners alive for some time.

No concessions are to be made, according to the acting warden, or at least until after Warden W. H. Mackey returns this afternoon from Oklahoma, where he has been on business.

SCOTT CONFIDENT

Again Dodges Hangman's Noose by Decision of Supreme Court

Chicago, June 23—Russell Scott, who has been dodging the hangman's noose for three years following his conviction for the murder of Joseph Maurer during a drug store holdup, was confident today that he will eventually and finally throw off the menace of the gallows.

Scott, who has been saved a half dozen times through a series of reprieves, stays and committments to asylum, increased his lead in the race with the hangman yesterday when the supreme court of Illinois granted him a new trial to test his sanity.

The new trial involves no question as to his guilt. It is merely to determine whether or not he is competent mentally to hang. If Scott is found sane in the new trial he will again be sentenced to hang, otherwise he will be returned to Chester Asylum for the Criminal Insane.

FARMER KILLED AND TWO INJURED IN COLLISION

Newark, June 23—Charles Herbert, 30, a farmer, of near Hanover, was killed, and Miss Lenna Hollister, 25, and her brother, George Hollister, are in a serious condition in a local hospital, as the result of an Ohio public service traction car striking their automobile early today three miles east of this city. Miss Hollister was slightly injured.

LEFT TURN RULE AT SIGNAL POST

After the motorist has entered the intersection and desires to make a left turn, he should pull over to the right far enough to allow through traffic to pass to his left, (between him and the signal post), being careful not to run so far to the right as to have any part of the car upon the pedestrians' crossing space. He should wait for the signal to show the word "Go" for the street he wishes to take. In pulling into the intersection thus to make a left turn, he should go forward until the rear of his car is about even with the signal post so that another driver desiring to make a left turn may also enter the intersection.

TWO CHICAGO POLICE, BANDIT SLAIN IN DUEL

Three Women Held as Witnesses Following Battle; One Victim Ex-Convict

Chicago, June 23—Three women were held by police today as witnesses in the pistol battle which resulted in the killing of two policemen and John R. "Dan" Leathers, ex-convict, automobile thief and holdup man.

One of the women, Miss Jessie Schultz, admitted having been in the [illegible] when the fatal pistol battle took place early today but denied knowledge of his criminal activities.

The dead officers are Police Sergeant Thomas Kehoe, 52, and Patrolman James Farley.

The fatal shots were fired when the police officers, in a bureau car, pursued the bandit in a stolen automobile. During the chase a woman companion of the bandit leaped from the car and disappeared in the darkness.

CUT WEEDS IS ORDER OF SANITARY OFFICER

C. M. Tobin Declares War on Persons Who Neglect Property

Backed by an ordinance passed by city council several years ago in which a penalty is provided for those who violate its provisions, Sanitary Commissioner Charles M. Tobin, has declared his annual warfare on the property owners who neglect to keep down the weeds on their property.

The sanitary commissioner said today that he had received several complaints regarding weeds on vacant lots and that he would take steps immediately to see that the weeds were cut. Failure on the part of the property owner to comply with his orders, will result in their arrest the commissioner said.

WANT HOOVER TO HALT SMITH'S OCEAN FLIGHT

San Francisco Man Declares Attempt in Plane Would Be Suicide

San Francisco, June 23—Secretary Hoover was appealed to today in an effort to prevent Ernest Smith, air mail pilot, from taking off as early as next Monday night on an attempted non-stop flight to Honolulu.

Supervisor Milo Kent, of the San Francisco citizen's flight committee, handling local arrangements for the Dole $35,000 flight, appealed to the secretary of commerce to force an expert inspection of Smith's machine. Characterizing Smith's airplane as "second-hand," Kent said the attempt would be "suicidal."

Supporters of Smith, angered by Kent's action, declared the pilot would hop off for Hawaii just as soon as his plane is ready.

LIMITATION OF ALL NAVIES TO CRUISERS AIM

American Experts See Ambition of British in Geneva Proposals

Geneva, June 23—Eventual limitation of the navies of the world to light cruisers, armed with six-inch guns, and destroyers is the aim of the British admiralty.

American experts at the tri-partite naval disarmament conference see just this in the British proposals to further reduce the size of capital ships and the calibre of guns on capital ships.

The British revealed their hand in suggesting that 10,000-ton, eight-inch gun cruisers gradually disappear, according to the views of the American experts.

Will Crop Up Again

Little towards this end will be accomplished at this conference but it is certain that the scheme will show itself again in 1931 when a conference is held to extend and modify the Washington treaty.

"The only advantage we see in the British idea is one of economy," declared an American expert in the International News Service. "It is an excellent idea from the British point of view because with their convenient naval bases, small light cruisers with limited cruising radius are sufficient of no other national has more powerful ships.

"Lacking the necessary naval bases we cannot accept the proposition because small cruisers are useless to us except for coast defense. The same applies to Japan. Furthermore, the British in war [illegible] augment their fleet with at least 40 merchant ships mounting six-inch guns.

For War, Not for Peace

"On paper our fleet might exactly equal the strength of Great Britain's but in the event of war she would immediately have a preponderance of strength because of her naval bases and her immense fleet.

"After all, we are limiting navies for war time and not for peace."

The Japanese attitude towards the British gesture is practically identical to the American.

The Japanese delegation is showing more and more of an inclination to bring up the question of naval bases for serious discussion, an action which would certainly prolong the present conference if it did not check it entirely.

The United States government at Washington is apparently greatly disturbed over the British suggestions regarding capital ships and at its request Hugh Gibson today conferred with the Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, chief British delegate, and asked for a complete memorandum exposing the British admiralty's views on capital ships. Bridgeman agreed to prepare the memorandum which probably will be handed to Gibson tonight.

GERMANY DEMANDING CONSIDERATION AS EQUAL

Not To Grasp Hand of France as Vanquished, Stresemann Says

Berlin, June 23—"Germany is ready to grasp the hand of France, not as a vanquished nation grasping the hand of the victor, but only as an equal shaking hands with equals," declared Herr Stresemann, foreign minister, in a speech in the Reichstag this afternoon. He spoke in reply to the recent speech made by Premier Poincare of France, charging that Germany was still lax in fulfilling the terms of the Versailles treaty.

"We demand the evacuation of the Rhineland as a fulfillment of the solemn promises given us in November, 1925," said Herr Stresemann, "nonfulfillment of solemn pledges destroys confidence in future promises. The German public has lost patience."

Germany places no obstacles in the way of a Franco-German Rapprochement, Stresemann declared and he called on Premier Poincare to use his influence for a reduction of the occupational troops, in order to prove the desire of France for peace.

A mother's love has reunited Mrs. Margaret Sweeney Anderson, 68, to make two long pilgrimages afoot. Five years ago she walked from her home in Sioux Falls, S. Her son, only 22 then, was pardoned shortly after her visit to the White House. Her second hike from Sioux Falls is to Adrian, Mich., to visit this same son. Autoists frequently give her rides.

LINDY IN WASHINGTON; CONFERS ABOUT FLIGHT

Only Small Crowd Out To See Him; May Go to Canada

Washington, June 24—Charles A. Lindbergh went into conference with government officials here today concerning his plans for the immediate future, which are understood to contemplate a nation-wide tour in the interests of commercial aviation.

The transatlantic flier dropped down on Bolling Field shortly before noon today after an uneventful flight from Dayton, Ohio, and after resting and chatting an hour with service fliers at the field he went to the department of commerce for conferences.

Only a small crowd of flying officers and a few curious spectators saw the flying colonel pay his third visit to the capital. His arrival today was in sharp contract to the tumultuous welcome given him 10 days ago.

If the proposed Canadian trip is definitely decided upon, Lindbergh plans to return to St. Louis for his own craft so that "We" may make the trip. He came today in a borrowed army plane. Secretary Kellogg is understood to favor the Canadian visit, the invitation for which came from the Canadian government through Minister Massey. Acceptance of such an invitation would make "Slim" a sort of unofficial goodwill ambassador to the northern neighbor.

COASTWISE LINER AND TRAWLER COLLIDE IN FOG

Three of Fishing Craft Crew Lost, Two Hurt; Ozark Aground

Chatham, Mass., June 23—The Clyde liner Ozark, Jacksonville, Fla., to Boston, with a valuable cargo of general freight and with 34 men aboard, was in collision in a fog and heavy sea today with the fishing trawler Surge, of Boston, with 22 men aboard.

The Surge began to sink rapidly. Nineteen of the crew of the trawler were rescued, but three of them were lost. Two of the crew of the Surge were injured.

Captain Andrews of the Ozark discovered that water was flowing into the liner through a jagged hole forward.

The Ozark was promptly beached off Pamet River.

Captain H. H. Kelly and crew of the Pamet River coastguard station risked their lives in launching a surf boat to reach the side of the stricken Ozark, which was grounded in the sand a short distance off the Cape Cod shore.

By this time the Surge, owned by the Bay State Fishing Co. of Boston, had sunk.

The 19 rescued men from the Surge were taken aboard the Ozark by members of the Ozark's crew.

GENERAL WOOD GOING BACK TO FILIPINO POST

Scheduled To Visit President in Black Hills and Tell of Willingness

NO FRICTION, CLAIM

Says Coolidge Believes Island Governor Has Done Good Job Under Circumstances

Rapid City, S. D., June 23—Like the soldiers who plunges into the thick of battle when the odds are heaviest, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood was to come here today to tell President Coolidge that he is willing to return to his post as governor of the Philippine Islands.

Reports of alleged friction between General Wood and the president are ascertained to be utterly groundless. Likewise the intimations that Wood is "ready to quit" are known to be untrue.

General Wood and the leaders of the independence movements in the islands have been in constant trouble. With power divided between the local legislature and the general, civil government has at times almost reached an impasse. The general's [illegible]th has not been the best.

But President Coolidge has been told that the general is so anxious to carry on his administrative program that he will return to the Philippines, "even if he has to die in the harness."

Believes in Wood

That report has been made by Representative Tilson, Republican floor leader of the house, who today is conferring with the president on domestic legislation. Tilson is just back from a survey of the islands.

Combined with Wood's determination not to "about face" while he is under attack by the Filipino leaders is President Coolidge's belief that the general has done a very good job under very trying circumstances. Education, sanitation, and development of public works have greatly progressed under Woods regime, the president believes.

The president shares the general's opinion that the natives have not sufficiently advanced in the art of self-government to grant them [illegible] now.

TEACHERS HERE CHOOSE JUDGE, SENATOR FESS

Cedar Point To Be Named for Meeting Next Year

Cedar Point, June 23—Next summer's meeting of the Ohio State Teachers' Association will be held here, according to advices received by the convention headquarters committee today.

The eightieth annual meet, concluded last night, was the largest ever held in point of attendance, with the possible exception of 1921, it was announced. Approximately 60 per cent of the total membership of 34,625, registered.

Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh, of superior court, Chicago, whose address last night was last on the convention program, said education's cost is the "price of prosperity."

Rev. Simeon D. Fess, in his address, included a reply to Sen. Arthur Capper, Kansas, who had termed him a "high-hatter," in which he challenged Capper to a "farm-work duel," and threatened to "show him up," if he accepted.

There were cheers, some booing and intense excitement when De Valera and his followers entered the building at 2:30 without incident. At the end of half an hour the group was still in the corridors arguing with officials and refusing to leave.

The Republicans were reported to be considering taking the oath after all.

Oceanic Flights Help Sell Planes in South America

Correspondent Sees Country of Our Southern Neighbors Ideal for Aviation

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, June 23—Lindy's flight promises to give a big boost to the South American market for airplanes made in this country—if North American concerns are enterprising enough to take advantage of it.

They never have been in the past.

At any rate, no energetic attempt ever has been undertaken to push sales in the very part of the world where, of all others, aviation ought to flourish most vigorously.

European manufacturers haven't been so backward. They gained a start on the United States directly after the war, and, from all accounts, have kept it. Still, even Europeans seem to have been singularly remiss in following up their opportunity.

OUR army's Latin American "Good Will" flying expedition ought to have given this country some favorable advertising, and probably did, but of course it has to be backed by salesmanship.

Why, with all our bragging about our enterprise, we continue to neglect what I know, from personal observation, to be so wide-open a field, always has been one of the mysteries to me. However, we do. I know that from personal observation also.

Now, right after the "Good Will" folk, along comes Lindy and jumps the Atlantic.

THE South American conclusion, so they tell me, is that if Lindy's North American plane could do what it did for Lindy, almost any North American plane can do nearly anything for anybody.

I heard of several nice South American nibbles already.

They'll get tired of it after awhile, though, and flock over to Europe, if past experience counts for anything, before we take the trouble to rent in, and land 'em.

A LARGE part of the South American east coast, be it understood, is flat as a pancake—in that respect well adapted to aviation.

Of course the west coast is corrugated by the Andes, but that's a mere margin. The level country, barring the extreme north and a few scattered small ranges, extends from the Atlantic nearly across the continent, to the Pacific coast jumping-off-place.

There's also a deal of jungle, which it will take time to conquer, but there are likewise tremendous stretches of almost treeless pampas.

FROM the aviation standpoint, the beauty of these prairies is that railroads are few and far between and the wagon roads are awful. When it's wet they're impassable.

There are thickly settled districts—parts of South America are plenty inhabited—where travel's impossible for weeks at a time, except on horseback, every season. One estanciero, or rancher, I once knew in the Argentine, used to be practically marooned on his place each spring—until finally he bought a plane (European) which took him into town in a few minutes.

That's what I call an aviation country.

THERE are big water courses even through the jungles, with some sizable towns on their banks.

They're negotiable by boat, to be sure, but it's slow, and, besides, there are rapids and cataracts. What does a hydroplane care for water falls and rapids!

So far as I can see, the South Americans never need any roads, if only we have gumption enough to supply 'em with plenty of aviation.

RICHMAN'S CLOTHES

Win Thousands of New Friends Each Month

The World's Greatest Clothing Factory had to be made larger — the addition now under construction, 75,000 square feet, equals the total floor space of most clothing factories—yet it adds less than 25 per cent to the capacity of this great Richman plant.

This addition will be equipped with the latest improved precision machines and appliances for good clothes making, and ready to carry it share of the needed production by August first. The capacity of our big Lorain factory has also been greatly increased—mighty convincing evidence that Richman's Clothes are giving buyers unusual satisfaction—and a generously big measure of value.

Meanwhile, there is no interruption of our regular manufacturing schedule—big shipments of newly styled and freshly tailored Richman's Clothes are delivered, weekly, to each Richman store.

All $22.50

Richman's Clothes are all one price—$22.50 for unrestricted choice of any suit or tuxedo with silk dress vest.

If all men knew, as we know, the true worth of Richman's Clothes—how well we style them, how carefully we select the woolens and lining, and how much painstaking effort goes into the tailoring—we could not produce clothes enough to keep pace with sales.

Come in and see the clothes produced by our big family of stock owning tailors—inimitable style, woolens worthy of high prices, tailoring any manufacture might be proud to have bear his label—and the most comprehensive election of styles, weaves, patterns, colorings and sizes to be found anywhere.

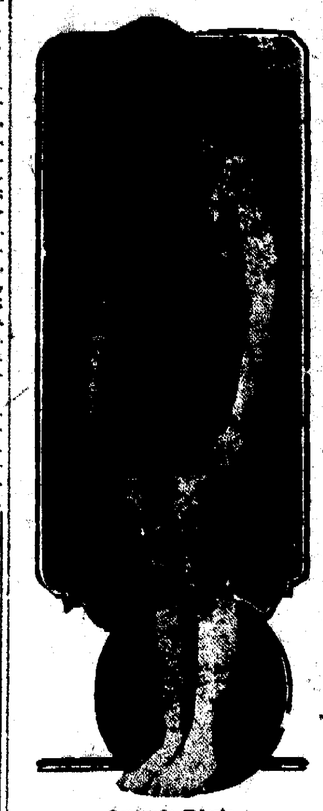
Behind the Screen



Gertrude Ederle

IT seems that the "athletic type" is the thing today in the film capital. No baseball stars, sprinters, prominent ring gladiators, etc., are safe from the every-ready fountain pen and dotted line. More athletes are comnig before the movies today than at any previous time in film history.

We have seen "Babe" Ruth, the home run king, in "Babe Come Home," and Harold "Red" Grange, football star, having made "One Minute to Play," is getting ready to start on another movie. Gene Tunney, who toppled Jack Dempsey from the heavyweight throne, has been doing picture work. To make this group quite complete, however, announcement has been made that Gertrude Ederle has entered the movies at last. She signed a contract with Paramount recently, and her first motion picture venture will be in "Swim, Girl, Swim."

In spite of her publicity value and her drawing ability, Miss Ederle will not play the leading part in the picture. Bebe Daniels, the screen comedienne and feminine athlete, is to play the starring role in it. It is to be a comedy version of the Catalina Channel swim, and that's where Miss Ederle enters.

Miss Ederle seems to be well satisfied with the arrangement and is eager to plunge into films. In fact she cancelled all her vaudeville engagements to go to Hollywood immediately.

The common rule in things theatrical is for the stage actor or actress to leave the footlights for the clicking cameras. But lately the reverse seems to be the rule. We already have heard of the stage ventures of Corinne Griffith, Lois Moran, Charles Ray and others. But now they tell us that Dolores del Rio, the Mexican film star who is attracting wide attention in movie circles, may turn the tables and take a vacation from the studio via the speaking stage.

Because of the great interest awakened in flying at the present time, release dates of two air pictures have been advanced. Al Wilson, daredevil airman featured in "Three Miles Up," is extending exciting stunts in the air. The other picture, "Sky High Saunders," is a thrilling tale of smuggling by airplane, in which Elsie Tarron plays the leading feminine role.

Plans have been made to film a photodrama based on the exploits of Lief Erikson, who, it is generally accepted by historians, was the first white man to discover America "Vikings" is the title.

"The Divine Woman" is Greta Garbo's next. It is a screen adoption of Gladys Unger's novel "Starlight." Victor Seastrom directing. Richard Barthelmess will next appear in "The Drop Kick," a football story.

"The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," has been adapted from a successful stage comedy for screening, with May Robson and Harrison Ford in the leads.

The screen version of "Rose-Marie," the musical comedy, will be made entirely in technicolor. Renee Adoree and Owen Moore have been chosen for the leads.

Greta Nissen is playing the feminine lead opposite John Barrymore in "The Tempest," a romantic tale.

Lon Chaney's next picture will be "The Hypnotist," another original story by Tod Browning.

Buster Keaton's next picture for United Artists will be a story of the Mississippi River, in which Keaton will play a comic part of a steamboat boy.

ENFORCEMENT OF NEW GAS ACT MAY BE HELD UP

Application Filed with Donahey by Petroleum Men May Cause Delay

Enforcement of new regulations for equipment and operation of gasoline pumps and filling stations throughout Ohio may be postponed until Sept. 1 as the result of an aplication filed with Governor Donahey by representatives of the Ohio Petroleum Marketers' Association, according to information received by County Auditor Earl E. Thomas, who recently started an inspection of all pumps in Marion County preparatory to putting the new rules in effect on July 1.

Today Thomas stated that the inspection work in this county will be suspended until he receives further orders from the division of weights and measures of the state department of agriculture, which has charge of filling station supervision throughout the state.

Had Visited Stations

In compliance with instructions received from the state department recently, Thomas had visited a large number of filling stations in the county and had ordered repairs or replacements made where pumps now in use do not measure up to legal requirements.

As a result of the auditor's preliminary work, one of the larger oil companies operating in the county ordered more than 30 new pumps to replace the ones now in use and had arranged for installing the new equipment before July 1. Other companies and some of the smaller dealers had also taken steps to comply with the new regulations.

Expresses Disapproval

Thomas expressed disapproval of the state department's procedure today. He says that cancellation of the order for enforcement of the new regulations at this date is manifestly unfair to county auditors who had already started their inspection work and also to oil companies which had arranged to install new equipment.

"It means that these companies will be using standard equipment in compliance with the law while many of their competitors will continue operating their old pumps," Thomas says.

Enforcement of filling station regulations to require installation of pumps which will assure motorists accurate measure when purchasing gasoline has been held in abeyance several years, Thomas states. An order to have new equipment in place by Dec. 20 was issued last year and an extension granted when dealers represented that it would be impossible for them to comply within the time specified.

Finally complaints from motorists against short measure at filling stations in various parts of the state became so numerous that the state department finally set July 1 as the deadline for installing equipment which would guarantee honest and accurate service.

Call on Governor

Several days ago representatives of the Ohio Petroleum Marketers' Association called on Governor Donahey and filed a formal protest against enforcement of the new regulations at this time. They stated that installation of the new equipment would mean an expense of more than a half million dollars to filling station operators and that the changes ordered are more drastic than necessary.

The governor gave W. D. Leech, head of the state division of weights and measures, a week to prepare an answer to the protest and also indicated that he might order a delay in enforcement of the proposed new regulations until Sept. 1.

Leech and representatives of the filling station interests are planning to meet in an effort to effect a compromise, according to reports from Columbus.

The filling station representatives informed the governor that the proposed changes in equipment ordered by the state would provide no definite assurance that pumps could not be manipulated to cheat gasoline purchasers.

Although numerous complaints about short measure have been received from many localities in Ohio, comparatively few have come from Marion County, officials say.

All men may be born equal, but some improve beyond others.

Surprises Clergy

Rev. Henry Lewis, rector of an Ann Arbor, Mich., Episcopal Church, surprised an Episcopal church conference in San Francisco by recommending that the church consider whether or not unmarried unions should be certified. The form of "companionate marriage," as championed by former Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, Colo., was cited by the Rev. Lewis as the sort of unwed union the church might well weigh.

Answers Charges

Emery E. Kline, defendant in a divorce suit filed by Mabel Goldie Kline, Monday, in which she accused him of having deserted her on June 13, filed an answer in the court of common pleas yesterday in which he denies the desertion charge and alleges that his wife left their home after having struck him with a stove poker.

The assault occurred on the day that he is accused of having deserted his wife, Kline states. In her petition Mrs. Kline related that in deserting her Kline moved all of their household goods to the home of his parents in Prospect.

Husband 21, Wife 20

The husband is 21 years of age and the wife 20. Because of her being a minor, Mrs. Kline's suit was filed through her father, Sylvester Fry, as her next friend.

They were married June 30, 1925 and have one child, William Edward, age 10 months. In his answer, Kline says that he and his wife lived happily together until after the birth of their child, when his wife became excitable and bitter toward him, this display of temperament being climaxed by the stove poker attack.

Through his attorneys, Mouser, Young & Mouser, the husband asks that Mrs. Kline's suit be dismissed.

In her petition the wife asked the court to grant a temporary injunction restraining Kline from disposing of their household goods and also from molesting her in the care and custody of their child. The injunction was allowed yesterday by Judge Scofield.

home with the delegation shortly after 2 o'clock this morning. John A. Abel, secretary of Buckeye Aerie, who was elected state president for next year, returned to Marion with the delegation after having attended all of the convention sessions, starting last Sunday.

Abel was installed as president at the closing business session of the convention yesterday morning.

Today the new state president was at his office in the Eagles building here taking up the work of making preliminary plans for his year in office. Among his first tasks, he stated, will be appointment of numerous deputies and committees to serve during his administration.

Set Membership Goal

At the convention the state serie set a membership goal of 90,000 for next year. Should this mark be reached the membership increase during Abel's administration will be the largest in the history of the state organization. It will necessitate an increase of 22,000.

The membership in the state now stands at 68,000, an increase of 16,000 having taken place last year.

Youth Admits Burglarizing Local Store After Coming Here to Attend Funeral

Coming to Marion from his home in Nobsonville last Friday to attend the funeral of a relative, Lester Murphy, '27, climaxed the trip by burglarizing a local store following the funeral rites, according to the story told by him following his arrest and hearing in Juvenile Court here yesterday.

The burglary took place at the R. W. Williams grocery, located at the corner of Bennett and Waterloo-sts. Young Murphy pleaded guilty when arraigned before Juvenile Judge McNeal yesterday and will serve a term in either the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster School atLancaster or the state reformatory at Mansfield. He served at the Lancaster school for a former offense, officials say.

Says He Was Not Alone

Murphy says that he was not alone in the Williams burglary, his story being that another boy entered the store while he served as a lookout. Police are investigating that phase of his story.

Entrance to the store was effected by breaking a window and the loot consisted of a small quantity of cigars and candy, a revolver and some change taken from the money drawer.

Displaying the revolver to another boy Friday night, young Murphy said, "I broke into a store and got this tonight, but don't tell anybody," according to police accounts of the case.

The youngster to whom Murphy imparted the information notified authorities and the arrest followed. Some of the cigars taken from the store were found in Murphy's possession, authorities state.

MANY VETERANS BENEFITED BY POST'S EFFORTS

Scores Taking Advantage of Insurance Information Service of Legion, Claim

Many World War veterans are taking advantage of the service provided by Bird-McGinnis Post, No. 162, of the American Legion, to assist them in renewing their government insurance.

At the semi-monthly meeting of Bird-McGinnis Post held last night reports were received showing that since the post opened its insurance headquarters at 149 E. Center-st, applications have been filed by ex-service men for renewal of policies totaling $41,000.

The insurance office will be kept open and the service continued until after July 2, the final date set by the government for filing of renewal applications.

At last night's meeting it was decided to remind all World War veterans that the government will grant no extension of time and to urge the filing of insurance applications on or before July 2.

Applies To All

The opportunity for renewals applies to all World War insurance regardless of its present status or how long it has been since policies were permitted to lapse.

The policies may be reinstated and converted into any one of seven forms of standard insurance by payment of one month's premuim. Policies may be reinstated either in whole or in part.

The insurance office will be open each night until after July 2 with an insurance man always on had to receive applications and explain the various forms of policies.

Charles Howard and Grant E. Mouser Jr. were elected last night as delegates to the state Legion convention to be held in Canton in July. L. Don Jones and T. E. Kinnear were named as alternates.

Named Chairman

Walter Burger was appointed chairman of the child welfare committee.

A report of the picnic held at the Soldiers and Sailors Orphans home at Xenia, Sunday, when a company of children at the home were guests of Bird-McGinnis Post, was made by Otis Harraman, chairman of the committee in charge of the event.

BONES OF MASTODON ARE FOUND IN OHIO CREEK

Loudonville Physician Makes Discovery While Fishing; State Curator Interested

Ashland, June 23—What is regarded as one of the most important prehistoric finds ever made in Ohio has been uncovered on the farm of W. S. Simms, about nine miles south of here. It is a part of the skeleton of a mastodon. Excavation is being continued in the hope that the entire skeleton will be uncovered.

The find was accidentally made by Dr. W. A. Moore of Loudonville. While fishing along Honey creek, he saw a huge bone lying on the bottom of a pool. Removing his clothing, he endeavored to bring it up, but the icy water prevented this. Returning later with equipment, he brought to the surface what has been identified as the axis bone of a mastodon.

Thrilled by his find, Dr. Moore immediately began work which, to date, has brought forth several ribs of a mastodon, one of the lower vertebras of an unknown animal believed larger than a mastodon, and a femur of an unknown animal.

The course of the stream has been diverted and a pump placed to empty the pool of water which rushes in from three springs. Careful excavation is being done on the bottom and banks of the pool, with the expectation that within a short time other important bits of the skeleton will be brought to light.

Dr. James S. Hine, curator of the state museum, Columbus, is taking an active interest in the work. He declared that the axis indicates the mastodon to be one of the largest ever uncovered.

LOCAL LAWYERS TAKE PART IN IMPORTANT SUIT

Carhart & Warner Represent Insurance Companies Against State Commissioner

Carhart & Warner, Marion law firm, represented two Celina, O., mutual insurance companies in a suit, decided by the state supreme court yesterday, which is regarded as one of the most important insurance cases heard in recent years.

The suit was brought by the National Mutual Insurance Co. and the Celina Mutual, to compel the state insurance commissioner to grant licenses for their operation. It resulted from the refusal of Harry L. Conn, former state insurance commissioner, to renew the licenses.

Conn's refusal was based upon his claim that E. J. Brookhart of Celina, secretary and administrative officer of both companies, had drawn $275,000 in salary and commissions during a six-year period. This amount, Conn held was excessive.

Courts Findings

The supreme court found that Brookhart had actually drawn $202,000 and the decision ordered him to repay all in excess of $15,000 a year for the six years.

Should this return be made by Brookhart the two companies will receive their licenses, according to interpretation of the court's ruling.

During the legal battle, which is said to have been watched closely by insurance men throughout the state, a record of 1,200 printed pages of depositions alone was made. Cost of printing the record exceeded $3,000.

Fred W. Warner in Charge

Most of the depositions were taken under the direction of Fred W. Warner of the local law firm, Carhart & Warner, who spent more than a month completing the undertaking.

The case originated in the supreme court and was out of the ordinary in that respect, nearly all litigation coming before the state's highest tribunal being started in the lower courts. Because witnesses do not appear in person before the supreme court it was necessary to submit all testimony in the form of depositions.

The court found that average annual salaries paid officials of companies doing a like volume of business was $9,000.

Counsel for the insurance companies argued that Brookhart was entitled to the large compensation drawn by him because of his exceptionally successful management which yielded substantial profits for the stockholders.

Had No Bearing

It was also pointed out that when Conn, superintendent of insurance, refused to grant the licenses, he was attorney for a competing insurance company which paid him an annual retainer fee. The court held that this circumstance had no bearing upon the case.

The case was argued in the supreme court on June 3 by Carhart & Warner and other attorneys representing the different litigants.

BUDGET WORK IS DELAYED BY NEW MEASURE

Blank Forms Will Not Be Ready for Distribution Before July 1

Compiling of budgets upon which tax rates in Marion County will be based next year is delayed because of a new law adopted by the last legislature and blank forms for the budgets will not be ready for distribution before July 1, County Auditor Earl E. Thomas stated today.

Ordinarily all budgets for the various taxing subdivisions are complete and in the hands of the auditor at this time of the year.

The new law provides for almost a complete rearrangement of accounts and also includes various other alterations which necessitate drafting of an entirely new form. The new budget blanks are now being drafted by the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices at Columbus and will soon be ready for the printer, county auditors have been informed.

No Tax Figuring Delay

There will be no delay in computing tax rates because of the budget changes, Thomas states, as the rates can not be fixed until after the tax duplicate for next year is completed. The law provides that the budget commission shall meet the first Monday in August to start work and shall have the rates completed by September 1. All budgets will be on file before the commission's opening session, Thomas says.

The new budget forms are expected to give the commission clearer and more definite information upon which to compute the tax rates and thus make it possible to hold the rates absolutely within legal limitations.

The budget commission consists of the county auditor, county treasurer and prosecuting attorney, the auditor being designated as clerk.

HANDICRAFT SHOP IS OPENED AT SCOUT CAMP

Indian Leather Work Is Started Under Direction of W. C. Brown

Yesterday marked the opening of the handicraft shop at Camp John A. Owens, five miles south of Marion, where 45 boy scouts of two Marion troops, a Prospect and a Bucyrus troop are in camp. Under the supervision of Scout Executive Walter C. Brown, camp director, the scouts are expected to produce some fine examples of Indian leather work. Mr. Brown will be assisted by Jack Melvin, of Chillicothe, in the handicraft work.

Seventy-four interested friends and parents responded to the invitation of camp officials to inspect the new camp equipment which includes, in addition to the new handicraft shop nine new cabins and an enlraged swimming pool with a diving tower.

Among the guests was F. J. Lynch of Phoenix, Ariz. During the coming week, Mr. Lynch, who is a skilled engineer, will speak at camp on the wild life of Arizona deserts.

Regular visitors' days are Wednesday and Saturday.

Under the supervision of Alvin Silverman, of Cleveland, the non-swimmers of the camp are being taught the fundamentals of floating, diving, and swimming. There are 12 boys enrolled in this class.

The staff of Camp Owens provided the entertainment for the scouts last night. Vaudeville stunts were on the bill with all members of the staff taking part. Alvin Silverman had charge of the program. The two weeks' camping period will continue until the Fourth of July.

Two Marion Men Honored.

We have a feeling that readers of Wednesday's Star were pleased when they noted therein that two local men, J. Wilbur Jacoby and John A. Abel, had been made the recipients of honors of statewide interest.

When the Eagles of Ohio assemble in annual convention and select a president by unanimous vote, as Mr. Abel was selected up at the Youngstown gathering, it can not be taken as other than a high compliment and a recognition of worth. Manifestly, they have learned to know Mr. Abel as we here in Marion know him, as one who is clean, straight and capable.

The selection of Mr. Jacoby by Governor Donahey for one of the three members to constitute the board of examiners having charge of the enforcement of the new real estate dealers' license law was a happy one. The governor could not have made a better choice. The enthusiasm with which Mr. Jacoby championed the proposed measure and the untiring energy with which he worked to accomplish the enactment of the proposed measure into a law, an accomplishment for which he is in no small part responsible, may be taken as indicating the devotion which he will give to the inauguration and working-out of the new system.

In honoring Mr. Jacoby, Governor Donahey does credit to himself. It is an earnest of his desire for a board made up of men of ability, standing and worth who will serve without favor and without prejudice and work for the general good rather than the good of self.

We congratulate Mr. Jacoby, and, knowing the recipient of the honor as we do, we congratulate the governor that he bestowed it.

Where the Chief Fault Rests.

The Hocking Valley Railway company has issued a booklet, "The Chance-Taker Loses," which contains some very interesting statistics, gathered and compiled by the American Railway association, on the relative danger of automobile traffic on the highways and at railroad crossings.

From the statistics we glean that there are 23,046,957 automobiles registered in the United States and that the railroad crossings in the land number 232,755. The operation of these 22,046,957 automobiles in 1926 caused the deaths of 2,492 persons and the injury of 6,991 at railroad-highway crossings while, during the same period, there were 30,819 killed and 600,000 injured on highways where there were no railroad crossings. Put another way, there was one fatality at railroad crossings to every 11,20,1 automobiles, whereas there was one fatality along the highways to every 1,001 cars. Still more surprising is the record of injuries. At railroad crossings there was an average of one injury to every 3,381 cars, while on the highways other than where they crossed railroad tracks there was the amazing ratio of one injury to every thirty-nine cars.

In addition to the figures heretofore given, 202 persons were killed and 1,430 injured as the result of automobiles being run into the sides of trains last year, and automobile accidents at railroad crossings resulted in the deaths of fifty and the injury of sixty-nine passengers and railroad employes aboard trains.

However, these figures for 1926, shocking as they are, are not so disheartening as a series of figures presented showing the upward trend of automobile accidents for the past twenty years.

In 1906 there were 929 deaths at railroad crossings and 412 automobile highway deaths. Twenty years later, in 1925, we find that the crossing deaths were 2,206, while the automobile highway deaths had increased for the same year, 1925, to 21,627. There was some fluctuations in the railway crossing deaths, but the automobile highway deaths showed a steady increase throughout the twenty-year period, the percentage of increase being 137 in railroad crossing fatalities while the automobile highway fatalities increased 5,149 per cent., the total deaths of the latter class for the twenty years numbering 164,965.

It may be said, in passing, that injuries at railroad crossings in 1925 numbered 6,555, while the total of the injuries sustained in automobile accidents upon the highways numbered almost 600,000.

The chief purpose of the booklet, of course, is to educate people to the meaning of the various signs and signals which are displayed or sounded at railroad crossings to safeguard highway traffic and thus to educate the public to the necessity of observing every precaution in approaching such crossings. But one who reads it, or these statistics gleaned from it, should be impressed by the still greater need of exercising every precaution possible for safety in traveling over the highways. The railroad showing is far better than the highway, the result of the immense number of cars compared with the relatively small number of trains.

We rather suspect, however, that a secondary purpose of the booklet is to call the attention of those into whose hands it falls to what the railroads consider the injustice, upon the face of the figures presented, of agitation for the elimination of grade crossings throughout the land, an undertaking which would necessitate an estimated monetary expenditure of $12,000,000,000 and years, if not generations, for its accomplishment at the present rate of earnings of the railroads.

If this latter is one of the purposes of the publication, it will have to be admitted that the American Railway association has made something of a case, for it has demonstrated that the great proportion of automobile deaths and injuries are not at railroad crossings, but along highways where no railroad crossings figure in them. The figures offered show that not the railroad train, but the automobile driver, is chiefly at fault. The booklet aptly asks, after pointing out that railroad engineers are trained, selected and disciplined: "Are automobile drivers?"

The Moscow government demands the "destruction of Christianity as the foe of the soviets." Commenting on the fact that Ambassador Herrick has sailed for America for his annual holiday, the Washington Star says: "His action is a cheering contradiction of the idea that the holiday route is from America to Paris." WHY NOT A FLEET OF AERIAL AMBASSADORS?

Not Always Grandmother's Way.

BY ROYAL S. COPPELAND, M. D.

I have a very amusing letter from one of my readers. In it she said: "Could you please help young mothers by giving grandmothers a talk about not giving baby everything from sugar to meat to eat at teething time?"

I know just exactly what this little mother means. When my boy was six or eight months old, we were on a visit back to Michigan. One of my ancestors, aged then something like ninety-five years, proceeded to give me some instruction about the feeding of infants. Among other questions he asked was this one: "Have you given the boy any pork rind to chew on yet?" When I admitted shamefacedly that I had not recommended this to the baby's mother, the old gentleman appeared much disgusted. He said: "The child can't thrive and get his teeth properly unless he chews on pork rind!"

All this talk about germs and care in feeding seems ridiculous to the old people. "Things weren't that way in old times," they cry. "Our babies thrived without all this new-fangled nonsense."

But the fact is the babies of that day did not thrive. Only thirty years ago, out of a thousand babies born in New York City, a quarter of them died before they were a year old. Four times as many died in the first year of life thirty years ago as die today. When you go back fifty years or more it will be found that over half the babies died in the first year of life.

Next to being a mother, the greatest thing in the world is to be a grandmother. I have reached the grandfather age, so what I say to the "doting grandmothers," to quote my correspondent, they must not take offense at, because it is advice good for all, including myself.

There have been so many changes because of advancing knowledge of disease and its causes that it is hard for us to appreciate how really inadequate our own ideas are. It isn't good for babies to feed them sugar every little while. It isn't good for little folks to have candy and meat and other things unsuited to their ages.

The surest sign of age and the thing I have to fight in myself all the time is an unwillingness to accept new ideas. The way for us to become old fogies is to insist that the conclusions we reached fifty years ago are dependable conclusions today. Almost the safest rule we can follow is that everything we used to believe has been found out to be untrue!

Of course this is not literally the fact, but it is certainly a logical statement regarding many things. There has been remarkable progress in all branches of science. The electric light, the telephone, the aeroplane, the radio—all these are in evidence of the remarkable progress in science.

It is unreasonable for us to accept these new truths, and to fail to realize that the science and art of bringing up babies have progressed. The doting grandmother and the doting grandfather must conform to modern ideas. If we don't do it we are going to be called old fogies and, what is worse than this, we are going to be old fogies.

Please forgive me, dear grandmother. My only excuse is that I need the same advice myself.

Poems That Live.

THE LAST GOOD-BY.

How shall we know it is the last good-bye?
The skies will not be darkened in that hour,
No sudden blight will fall on leaf and flower,
No single bird will hush its careless cry,
And you will hold my hands, and smile or sigh
Just as before. Perchance the sudden tears
In your dear eyes will answer to my fears;
But there will come no voice of prophecy—
No voice to whisper: "Now and not again,
Space for last words, last kisses, and last prayer,
For all the wild, unmitigated pain
Of those who, parting, clasp hands with despair."
"Who knows!" we say, but doubt and fear remain.
Would any choose to part thus unaware?

Editorial Comment.

A BIG JOB—A SMALL MAN.

In the final installment of his "Story of Revolt," in the New York Times magazine, Alexander Kerensky recites his experiences during the days which followed the bolshevist coup d'etat in Petrograd, November 7, 1917. It was a dramatic story, dramatically told, by a man who was acclaimed as one of the most fiery of the orators of the Russian revolution.

In details, Kerensky's narrative varies from familiar versions of the Lenine-Trotsky coup and of the part he played in the events related. But to the last, and at this distance of ten years, he still speaks of himself as the only Russian who was infallible about the revolution, as the only man who knew how to save it from the Reds. And invariably he ascribes his failures to other men's bad faith, plots, betrayals.

Not for a moment does it occur to the author of these memoirs that the conquests of the liberal revolution of March, 1917, were lost to Russia because they had been entrusted to a man undersized for the job. No amount of apologetics can change the fact that, with all the power in the land in his grip, Kerensky was running around in circles, prattling, playing petty politics, at moments when strong action was vital. Other Russians saw clearly the necessity of a firm national authority; some of them were eager to get Kerensky to help them in establishing it. The little dictator, however, spent his time suppressing imaginary counter-revolutions by patriotic men like General Kornilloff, whom he denounced as "Bolsheviks of the Right."

His volume, "Prelude to Bolshevism," is another pathetic document. It it he tells of his triumph over the Kornilloff movement, which was essentially republican, but sought to place the republic on a solid foundation and reorganize the army after the Kerenskyas had demoralized it. After this effort at rescue was defeated, the flood gates stood open to the Red deluge. It swept Kerensky out of the way and sent him flying abroad for shelter; what is more important, it ruined the revolution and doomed Russia to a despotism more ruthless and destructive than that of the czars.

Kerensky proved a small man for a big task.—Detroit Free Press.

SPREADING PEACE FROM THE HOME.

Accepting the fact that universal peace depends upon individual right action, the clubwomen of Texas have adopted this slogan, "Before I speak or act in retaliation I will try a peaceful solution of every difficulty."

It is estimated that at least 10,000,000 women are working through various organizations in the United States alone for the establishment of world peace. They are circulating thousands of leaflets. They have compiled hundreds of reports. They listen annually to many speeches and they have signed countless petitions for this or that step toward better international relations. Useful as each of these expressions of activity has been, not all of them put together are as efficacious as the acceptance and putting into practice of some such pledge as the one above quoted on the part of every woman everywhere.

Many women live in remote sections or have other duties which preclude their active participation in organized efforts to secure world peace, but no woman is too occupied to be able to be a good neighbor, and no woman lives so far away from others that she can not find means of expressing good will.

Peace like charity begins at home, so the Texas women have recognized, and the determination to spread peace from every home in the land would be more potent for international friendliness than all of the dollars and speeches in the world.—Christian Science Monitor.

"DOUBLING AS VERBS."

Some enthusiastic house organ editor wrote about the company employes presenting the boss with a watch and made the headline say: "Employes Watch Chief." Then a New York columnist took it up with a justifiable tirade against the use of "dine," "watch" and the like as transitive verbs. Words waxed many and fast.

Now comes a pioneer editor with the statement that in Colorado's early days the mining camp newspapers used nouns thus promiscuously with never a blush. Henry C. Butler, Leadville, perusing old files of his paper finds:

"The reporters delighted in saying that Captain So-and-So was 'caned,' 'watched' or 'badged,' as the case might be. And when one of the boys cashed in his checks, and the hearse and the brass band went over the hill to the cemetery amid the pines, the story was not complete without stating that the dead man was 'Evergreened,' his burial place being Evergreen cemetery."

Well, just the other day in these weighty columns there appeared the good noun "hippodrome" as a verb, and it wasn't long ago a reporter wrote the adjective "prominent" as a noun for a distinguished visitor to the city. So why "high hat" anybody?—Rocky Mountain News.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

How often we hear good words for high temper. It is traditional to think that the man or woman with a high temper—a badly controlled temper—has something that is a real asset in disguise. We have come to think the high-tempered man has energy, pep, drive.

The fact is bad temper is a hold-over from the barbarous age when men lived by instinct. Self-control is the master quality of the human-being—not temper.

Commencement days are over. Youngsters have been in the foreground, parents in the background. This paragraph is for young folks. Remember—mother's heart and father's heart are made light or heavy by your way with them. You — through school — are the product of their sacrifice and devotion. If you are grateful, say so.

The story is told of a mother on her death-bed. Like other mothers she has been unselfish, self-effacing. She had been too busy, to bound down with care, to think much about her children's thoughtlessness.

Now the children had come home to see her die. One of them, looking back through the years and the tears, said: "What a wonderful mother you have been to us."

And mother, looking up from her bed, saying her last words, said:

"Oh, why didn't you tell me that before."

"Everything has two handles," said Epictetus, old Greek slave who became a school teacher in Rome. "Be sure you know which handle to take hold of."

To take on tact and diplomacy doesn't mean to pass up truth. To have tact doesn't mean to beat about the bush. Everything is in the approach. Tact gives you the right approach. Come at things right and you can tell the truth without brutality.

The writer asked Kermit Roosevelt how his father managed to read so many books.

"He read all the time when he didn't just have to do something else," was the answer.

Roosevelt, going on a comparatively short sea journey, took aboard fifty books. People wondered why he was so interesting, why his mind was so active. It was because he kept his reservoir full of ideas—and he got ideas out of books. He made a business of reading hard. It's a business that pays dividends.—Copyright, 1927.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, June 23.—It used to be the Englishman with the doubled bill checkered cap and the tweedy look was the globe-trotter. The American's traveling consisted of yearly trips to the state fair. But not any more.

The Yankee swings off for Calcutta as casually as the Briton crosses the channel. In a travel bureau the other morning were three young men booking a trip around the world. They were in their early twenties and it was their second trip.

New York has some 10,000 youngsters in their teens who are being educated in select boarding-schools in England and France. They cross the ocean for vacations and back again by themselves. In a ship lounge recently was a boy of fifteen who had crossed the ocean twelve times alone.

But American itch for travel is not confined to youth. Older folks are becoming seasoned voyageurs. Mothers with gray hair who have never been beyond the county line are setting out for world jaunts when in other days they resigned themselves to knitting in chimney corners.

And in Monte Carlo, Deauville and Cannes elderly American gentlemen are as numerous as honeymooners. Abroad Americans are now considered the most seasoned of all travelers. Prosperity, of course, has much to do with it, but the big cause was the war.

This debouched thousands from farmlands and quiet village streets into streams of travel. The seed was planted and when they came back home they longed for new worlds to conquer—saved their money and were soon away again.

Then there were thousands who never expected to travel who lost dear ones in the war and were drawn across the sea to kneel in agony at little pine crosses on the battlefields of France.

Those swank luggage shops which have sprung up since travel became such a vogue are entrancing spots. One may buy a trunk that keeps six suits in perfect press. It has all sorts of space-saving gadgets and thing-ambobs for carrying an almost complete wardrobe from high hat to riding boots. There are mechanical attachments that unfold a shaving mirror for the man or an electric curling heater for the lady. One may go around the world with one trunk and scarcely lack for a single equipment found in the average dressing-room. And the fitted traveling bags with every toilet articles and a clock, thermometer, miniature medical and first-aid outfit, and other bewildering doodads too numerous to mention.

Today it is possible to telephone your travel bureau and with no more effort than putting on your hat start for Bombay.

I remember when Uncle Alex went to the Chicago World's fair for ten days. He was for weeks arranging his affairs, writing to hotels for rates and brushing up on the map of Chicago. He could name the towns he would pass in rotation. Everybody in the neighborhood was up to see him off on the 7 o'clock train and at least twenty-five went to the depot. He was quite a figure standing on the platform, waving good-by until the train turned the curve at Fox's dairy and disappeared.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

E. L. DOHENY.

Edward Laurence Doheny was born at Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, August 10, 1856. He prospected for gold and silver in the west for twenty years and since 1892 has prospected for, and produced petroleum. Doheny discovered several oil districts in California and several petroleum fields in Mexico. During the World war he served on the sub-committee on oil of the council of national defense.

Exchanges of ideas by oil producers would greatly benefit the public, Mr. Doheny holds. He puts it this way:

"The demoralization of oil markets can not result in any good to the industry or the public. Present over-production arises from the active and successful search for oil fields by geological departments of companies and the division of all classes of lands into small tracts requiring competitive drilling. This situation results in a great deal of fuel oil residuum which might otherwise be made the source of a large percentage of gasolene, going into the fuel oil market because pressure-still operation and production of a substantial amount of cracked or synthetic gasolene from this residuum could only be made at a loss.

"There is no prospect of the crude oil and gasolene excess ending in the near future. Oil men, who in the past looked with equanimity on thoughts of insufficiency of supply, have been justified and oper-production of today is the result of better methods.

"The production of gasolene now is not 100 per cent. of what could be produced, nor is crude oil production 100 per cent. of capacity. Shut-in production in the mid-continent, Pacific coast, Texas, Mexico and Venezuela, if demand required it, could increase production at least ten per cent.

"If only the anti-trust laws, such as the Sherman and Cayton acts, the statutes which give power to the federal trade commission, as well as statutes of some oil-producing states, permitted exchange of ideas among those engaged in the industry with a view to giving long life to the oil fields of America, it would be of vast benefit eventually to the general public and result in the elimination of enormous expenditures in duplication and otherwise in the development, refining and marketing of petroleum."

HARDING TOMB VISITORS ARE ON INCREASE

Record Number of Tourists Inspect Home on Mt. Vernon-av, Claim

A steady increase of visitors at the Harding Tomb and the Harding Museum, has been noted in the last few weeks, according to Lieut. Walter Lee Sherfey, in command at the Tomb and Major Ora M. Baldinger, in charge at the Museum.

Last week, according to Major Baldinger, was the banner week for attendance at the Harding Museum on Mt. Vernon-av. More people entered the home last week than during any previous week this year.

Visitors at the Tomb where the Tenth Infantry Guard Detachment is stationed as an honorary guard, as well as at the home, hail from all parts of the world. A complete record of the crowd at the Tomb cannot be kept on account of the large number of visitors who do not sign the visitors book at the guard house.

The largest crowd to be recorded at the tomb recently was the 3,000 people who viewed the service held by the members of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus June 12.

The next official homage to Harding will be paid by Major Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, commander of the Fifth Corps Area, during the inspection of the Harding Tomb guard here sometime in early July.

Many Visit New Shrine

Many people are also watching with keen interest the construction of the Harding Memorial. A large number of visitors were announced by officials at the partially constructed memorial, last Sunday.

Doors at the Harding Museum are now open at 10 o'clock during the week days and Sundays, sight-seers are admitted at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The home is closed to visitors every night at 6 o'clock.

APPREHEND YOUTH WHO BROKE QUARANTINE HERE

Harold Strickland Returned to James H. Erwin Home; Smallpox Case

Growing tired of living under a quarantine, Harold Strickland, 23, nephew of James H. Erwin, 278 Rose-av, who was quarantined when smallpox was discovered in the Erwin home several weeks ago, decided Tuesday afternoon that he would return to his home near Kenton.

Within 24 hours after his breaking quarantine, Harold was again a member of the Erwin household. When health officials discovered early yesterday morning that Strickland was coming from the Erwin household, other members of the family were immediately questioned as to his whereabouts and it was learned that he had gone to his home, six miles southeast of Kenton.

Sanitary Officer Charles Tobin left at once for the Strickland home and Harold was brought back to this city and again placed in the Erwin home with a warning that should he make another attempt to break quarantine, he would be more severely dealt with.

A third case of smallpox developed at the Erwin home yesterday morning when a son Leland was discovered to be ill with the disease. The young man had been vaccinated but not, it later developed, until after he had been exposed.

Mystery still surrounds the source of the disease with which both Mr. and Mrs. Erwin became afflicted at the same time. Reports that the disease had been contracted by the Erwins on a trip to Bellefontaine, are denied by members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin, both of whom suffered light attacks of the disease, have practically recovered and plans were being made to lift the quarantine, when the third case developed. Sanitary Officer Tobin stated yesterday that so far as is definitely known, no other cases of the disease exists in the city at the present time.

A close watch is being kept by health officials and any suspicious cases will be immediately placed under quarantine for further investigation.

Spring fever and hay fever have nothing in common, except when one has either, he doesn't feel good for anything much.

Price for Murder Tumbles As Wars of Leggers Rage

Cleveland's "bloody corner" at Woodland-av and E. 55th-st, scene of many hooting murders, and, inset, Police Chief Jacob Graul, who is determined to stop the "bootleggers' war" being waged in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, June 28—What price murders in the United States today?

Police are alarmed at the rapidly increasing number of "professional" murders who guarantee to kill as many persons as desired at a flat rate of so much a head.

Time was when a gunman used to demand a considerable sum for a killing, but now it's possible to hire a gunman for as low as $10. A criminal now in prison for life for murder is said to have been given that princely sum for the deed, with a promise of more later.

In the larger cities it takes more than $10 to "buy" a murder but not nearly as much money as you might imagine.

Murder Quotations Down

Cleveland police say the price of a murder here since the declaration of a bootleg war has fallen from $50 to $25. With a decrease in the inflow of illicit liquor and a consequent increase in private stills, well organized bootleg rings, determined to crush such competition, hire plug-uglies and gangsters to loiter around their establishments to instil fear, and beat up, or kill if necessary, a competitor who becomes a bit too cocky.

Most of Cleveland's trouble has been "hi-jacking" and "independent" leggers underselling the established rings, who have to pay large sums to confederates to bring in the liquor from Canada and aid in its distribution. When competition gets too keen and the "independents" encroach on the territory of their rivals, gun play settles the dispute. That's where the hired gangster enters the picture.

No Delay in "Punishment"

Punishment is both swift and sure in the underworld. When one of its denizens violates the bootleggers' code, he pays usually with his life. There are no lengthy investigations, no costly trials. The underworld enforces its laws with a deadly sureness that no police department in the country seems able to equal.

Perhaps the most dangerous corner in the country today is in Cleveland, at Woodland-av and E. 55th-st, otherwise known as the "bloody corner." More bootleggers have been killed in its immediate vicinity than any other corner in the city. The favorite way of killing in that neighborhood is to shoot a "marked" man as he alights from his automobile or as he sits in it parked alongside the curb.

Residents of the "Roaring Third," as the district is called, say it would take more than the entire police force to prevent murders there. "When those fellows make up their minds to kill a man, no one can stop them," those familiar with the bootlegging fraternity's ways say.

Automatics in Cleveland

Henchmen of Cleveland bootleggers pin their faith on automatics—not machine guns. They don't go in for wholesale slaughter as do their brothers in Chicago—they prefer to get their men one at a time.

Cleveland's police department, under the leadership of Police Chief Jacob Graul, is determined to round up the murderers and those who pay them for their bloody work.

As the gangsters drift westward across the country, shunning New York since the enactment of the Baumes law which provides life imprisonment for all third offenders, regardless of the triviality of the crime, other cities are facing the same problem as Cleveland—an oversupply of undesirables who will slug for a few quarts of liquor and kill for $25.

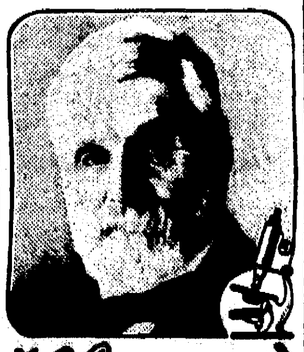
Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.



W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

BOUDOIR WEAR USES PASTELS

Delicate, pastel shades are favorites in milady's boudoir. Black lingerie and negligees have a certain vogue, but dainty pinks, blues, lavenders, etc., are dear to every woman's heart. They are becoming to youth and age.

A delightful nightgown is shown at the left above. It is made of blue georgette elaborately trimmed with lace. There are lace panels in the lower section each headed by a tiny French flower, and the flowers also trim the lace yoke. A narrow ribbon sash is tied at the waist.

The most alluring negligee pictured at the right is made of shell pink baronet satin. Its long, lustrous draperies would delight any woman's esthetic sense. The only touch of trimming, aside from the long, draped lines, is a rose which marks the closing. Marian Nixon posed for both pictures.

GREAT ENGLISH BEAUTY SECRET "HOWARD'S BUTTERMILK CREAM"

Druggists told not to take anyone's money unless this delightful new vanishing Cream quickly shows a decided improvement.

Big Demand, Says Bradley's Drug Store For New Style Package

Buttermilk Cream creates beauty almost like magic. The most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the dullest, most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough hands or arms snowy white, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use after application. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the least shininess or greasiness of the skin.

No matter whether you are troubled with a poor complexion, wrinkles, puffiness around the eyes, freckles, crow's feet or lines around the mouth, ugly finger nails, or just a simple roughness of the face, hands or arms caused by wind or sun, you will find that any or all of these troubles will quickly disappear with the use of Howard's Buttermilk Cream.

To prove this to your complete satisfaction, get a small quantity today at your favorite toilet goods counter with the understanding that they will freely return the purchase money should you be dissatisfied.

IMPORTANT—Even the finest face creams fail if the soap you use is harsh. Howard's Buttermilk Cream Soap keeps skin smooth, soft and pliable.

PTER THIRTY-EIGHT

per side of him was a series cks, standing as high as his and reaching down, perhaps, ees. Each rack was literally ned with daggers of all sizes, d descriptions. They were ed Moorish knives, slender, alian stilettoes, stubby, broad- merican bowie's, knives that abbreviated Malay kris, knives s and what not. Each rack ps three feet wide, and as ag nem they seemed to weave in ke curtains, one set of racks while another retreated; one swiftly to meet another, while e stationary.

tched them steadily, wonder- should advance, sensing that to be caught between two of he would be pierced through and through in a hundred aye, a thousand places, for the racks so bristled with daggers that it was impossible ti estimate the number each square contained. He heard a voice sounding from what seemed a great distance:

"Who approaches the Gate of the Daggers?"

Instantly, remembering what Omar had said, he answered:

"Youssef el-Habbassi, the wizard."

"Are you a liar or an imposter, or both?" came back the voice. "The word was that a spy from the Spaniards approached."

"Is it strange that one who is so great a wizard as I, could throw a spell over the rabble of the soldiery and make them believe things that were untrue.

"What proof have you that you are Youssef el-Habassi?"

"What proof, ask you? What, indeed, save that I have made the bugs rain upon a holy man, and breathed a spider from the air that stung him; what proof, save that I have walked the Forbidden Road and even at its end killed with my magic the Striped Death of the marabouts?"

There was silence for an instant, then the voice came again.

"If you truly are the wizard, Youssef el-Habbassi, then you have a token torn from the striped death. Show it, that I may see."

Instantly Larry's hand dipped beneath his burnouse and brought forth the ear of the tiger. Silently he raised it and held it out, full in the glare of the lights. He heard a muffled exclamation.

"Now, indeed, would it seem you are the wizard. Come, wizard, walk forward, through the Gate of the Daggers. You will need all your wizard's skill to overcome the test of the naked blades. Advance!"

Thrusting the tiger ear beneath his burnouse, Larry left his hand under the garment and closed his fingers lovingly around the butt of his automatic. Carefully, he sized up the racks of knives, wondering if he could not simplify the entire matter by dropping on his knees, assuming a belly-crawl, and so traverse this fondak of death. As though his thoughts had been read, the racks now began to move and they slithered backward and forward up and down, covering the entire space from floor to ceiling, coming together with a clashing of blades that sent out little blood-curdlings pung-g-gs. He saw that crawling would do no good.

He advanced three steps and saw the first of the racks closing in. He stopped, watching them close and clash, then as they parted he stepped boldly between them. Again he heard, as a distance, a muffled exclamation, but weather it was of chagrin, pleasure or admiration he could not say.

Deliberately he walked ahead. He had long since reasoned that he would need only to watch one side of the passage, for when one set of racks started to move, in whatever direction they chose, those on the opposite side moved likewise, and moved later not sooner.

So he passed the first rack, and the second, and the third. Now the fourth rack started to close in, quickly abruptly. He made a prodigious leap and heard the blades meet with tinkling clashes behind him. He could almost vision his own blood staining their points. The fifth rack was closing, closing high, moving swiftly. Like a flash he dropped, holding his head low. He heard the blades intermingle with their musical murmurings directly above him. As they parted he rose and stepped forward.

He wondered how many more racks there were. Surely he had passed half of them! But the sixth set of racks swooped in, swinging low, menacing. There was no time to leap forward; calmly, he placed a hand on the top of either rack as they swung in and threw his feet high. When the racks parted he knew that his burnouse, where it had dropped low and fallen between the blades, had been pierced through and through, that it was honeycombed with tiny cuts and abrasions.

But he had lost time letting himself down, so that there was no escaping the seventh rack. It closed in deadly as a fetid mist from a fever-grass swamp; he thrust his arms wide, guiding his palms between the blades, feeling them strike solid foundation. Then he straightened them and braced. Now, a slow, cruel pressure came on him, and his brow broke out in cold sweat under the strain. He knew that if he gave the fraction of an inch, if either elbow bent the slightest trifle, it would mean the collapse of his arms and a swift, stinging, bloody death.

Gritting his teeth he surged forward just enough to keep the pressure squarely on his arms. His shoulders and wrists ached under the strain; he felt that his elbows either must give way or that his wrists must break; it seemed that his arm bones were being shoved literally into their sockets at his shoulders. A shudder swept through him and he felt the muscles in his arms beginning to vibrate, as raw, tortured nerves began to cut up tantrums. He felt the muscles giving, felt even his will power being shaken, then—then the pressure eased.

Sobbingly, he dropped his arms; as in a dream he stepped forward, then, subconsciously, he realized that only one rack remained between him and freedom from this ordeal—only a three-feet square of daggers!

He gathered his muscles for a last, supreme try, then leaped—leaped high and far, straight ahead, past the racks, past a good five feet of space beyond the racks, then struck a hard-surfaced floor, and crumpled to hands and knees, panting, head down, like a dog that is near mad with thirst.

"Truly, you are a mighty man; none in all Moslem could have held back the racks as you have done. Arise and walk forward. You have passed the ordeal of the Gate of the Daggers. You are now safely within the Temple."

Gasping, winking his eyes where cold perspiration had run into them, blinding him briefly, he reached his feet. With a single motion of his hands he dashed the moisture from brow and eyes, then looked around to find the speaker.

He saw a tiny, wizened man with an ancient visage standing a half-dozen yards away, his hands on a huge, many spoked wheel. The secret of the moving racks was no longer a mystery to Larry, and he thanked whatever gods there be that it had been this wizened thin-armed man who had turned that wheel, else, with the enormous leverage thus to be had, he would have exerted a power behind those menacing racks that Larry's arms never could have endured.

He looked at the other, naked save for a loin-cloth.

"What now?" he asked, thickly fighting to restore his shattered nerves.

"We go to the Temple; come."

He followed the other down the passage, then a door swung open. He saw gray dawn breaking in a narrow court, and realized he had been in the Gate of the Daggers longer than he had thought possible. He walked into the yard as a salmon pink silver tinged the eastern mountains. He heard the muezzin and dropped swiftly, being even ahead of his guide in that respect, something he hoped would impress itself on the other's mind, for he intend[illegible] would so quickly realize that [illegible] for the feat, the [illegible]

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Again On the Horizon

I STARED at Philip Veritsen with the feeling that I was listening to a fantastic fairy tale. In the old days that now seemed so far remote I had known Harry Underwood's mentality was brilliant, if erratic, but I never should have suspected him of being capable of the scholarly fragments of drama which had appealed to the great dramatic producer so strongly. I knew what sure and fastidious taste my employer possessed, and realized that when he said the bits which Mr. Underwood had given him in years gone by went far beyond anything he ever had seen in sheer beauty and originality of treatment he was pronouncing the last word in artistic judgment.

But the thing which intrigued me most was Mr. Veritsen's belief that Harry Underwood was the writer of a remarkable new play which had been sent to him in a mysterious manner and purporting to be the work of a young and unknown author. That my employer might be mistaken in his deduction never entered my mind. I knew his unerring judgment too well. Harry Underwood was alive and his really remarkable brain was functioning again. This premised that he was no longer indulging in the dissipation which had wrecked his career and brought him so near the death meted out as a traitor.

I found myself also sharing Mr. Veritzen's belief that his old friend was no longer in a foreign country, but near at hand. This meant that I again might meet the man who during my acquaintance with him alternately had fascinated me by his brilliancy and laughing audacity and repelled me by a certain hard unscrupulousness which lay beneath his nonchalant exterior.

Suddenly I became aware that Mr. Veritzen was waiting for a comment upon his astounding news, and I aroused myself from the reverie into which his words had thrown me.

"I never have heard more exciting news," I told him truthfully. "It seems almost unbelievable. Frankly, I never expected to see Mr. Underwood again, while now——"

"While now he may walk back into our lives at any minute," Mr Veritzen rejoined. Then he gave me a queer little appraising and questioning look, and I realized that there was some direct purpose behind his apparently casual revelation to me of Harry Underwood's latest exploit.

Comprehension came suddenly to me I nodded.

"You would like me to tell Mrs Underwood of your discovery," I said. I made no attempt to hide the dismay in my voice. Discussing Lillian's affairs with her, unasked, is something which simply isn't done. Yet I knew that it was a task which only I could perform. No one else, save her young daughter, is so near to her. Two years ago I should have subordinated myself to Robert Savarin, the famous artist, who, as her first teacher, won her heart, unknowingly, and then after many years came back into her life again. But Robert Savarin's unbending, archaic ideas of woman's place in the world and jealousy of Lillian's work had shattered their revived romance, and Robert Savarin was in Europe trying to forget in the ardor of his work the vision of belated happiness which he had cherished when fate appeared to have sent Harry Underwood forever away from Lillian's life. Lillian never had told me in so many words that she had decided definitely to give up Robert Savarin, but I knew it, nevertheless, knew also that in her love for her young daughter, Marion Morton, she was finding rapturous happiness, marred only by the separation from the young girl which Marion's absence at school entailed.

As if Mr. Veritsen had clairvoyant powers, he smiled down at my dismayed face.

"Yes, I do wish you to tell Mrs. Underwood about this mysterious message—I almost said from the dead," he replied. "Perhaps you have not discovered yet that I am extremely partisan, and I was always fond of Harry Underwood. If there is any chance of his returning to the place in life which he ought rightfully to occupy, I'd like to be sure that his wife realized he had a few cards to match those played by that archaic artist, Robert Savarin."

Lindy Disappoints Thousands in Dayton; Refuses to Parade

50,000 PERSONS CROWD STREETS TO SEE FLIER

"Terrible Fiasco," Declares Mayor; Backer Says "We Couldn't Afford It"

Dayton, June 23—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off from Wilbur Wright Field here at 8:40 a. m., continuing his journey in a borrowed army plane to Washington, after an overnight visit with Orville Wright, the "father of aviation," at the Wright home here.

Dayton, June 23—Col. Charles Lindbergh, transatlantic flier and his St. Louis associates, planned to take off from Wilbur Wright field here early today, continuing their journey to Washington, following an overnight visit with Orville Wright, co-inventor of the airplane, in Dayton, "Cradle of Aviation."

Lindbergh is through with public demonstrations, and has returned emphatically to the role of a private citizen, he demonstrated on his arrival here, to the intense disappointment of thousands of residents of Dayton and central Ohio. He refused to permit the automobile which met him at the field to take him through the downtown sections of Dayton, where a crowd estimated at 50,000 or more, lined the thoroughfares to catch a glimpse of the famous birdman; and when the reception committee insisted, Lindbergh firmly threatened to leave the machine and go to Wright's home in a taxicab, unless the car was routed through the back streets to avoid the crowd.

Crowd Disappointed

Few of the thousands who had flocked to Dayton when the stop-off to visit Wright was heralded by the newspapers attempted to go to the flying field, but took their stations along the main streets, the announced route of the unofficial "parade" to Wright's home, and the crowd was loud in its expressions of disappointment when "Lindy" failed to appear.

"If the people of Dayton want to see me," Lindbergh was quoted as having said to Brig. Gen. William E. Gillmore, commandant at Wilbur Wright Field, "it might be that I can arrange to return at a later date."

When Harry H. Knight, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and one of Lindbergh's flight backers was asked to explain the sudden aversion of Lindbergh to public demonstrations, his only comment was.

"We couldn't afford it."

"Terrible Fiasco"

"It was a terrible fiasco," said Mayor Allen McDonald, chairman of the entertainment committee, reviewing the events of last night. "Colonel Lindbergh had been promised there would be no demonstration, and it was our endeavor to keep this promise. We had arranged to escort Colonel Lindbergh through the city, and pay him the homage which his exploit deserved. We expected his car, with Orville Wright, and General Gillmore to take a direct route uptown from the flying field to the Wright home. We acted in good faith, and we are greatly disappointed."

Following Lindbergh's refusal to appear in public here last night, the entertainment committee announced that all plans had been cancelled.

Dinner in Capital

Indication that Lindbergh would hop off again early today was seen in the statement of Knight that the party had a dinner engagement in Washington, which would make an early resumption of the journey imperative.

Lindbergh, flying a borrowed army plane, and escorted by two other ships, in which were Maj. Thomas Lanphier, commandant of the Selfridge Field pursuit group, Lieut. St. Clair Street, Harold M. Bixby, Harry H. Knight, and Maj. William B. Robertson, landed shortly after 6 p. m. The flight from St. Louis was uneventful, they said.

Huge Steam Shovels and Tiny Milk Bottle Caps Form Wide Contrast in Products of Marion Manufacturers

As the animal world shows a contrast in its greatest and most petite members ,the elephant and the mouse, so does Marion manufacturers show a marked difference in industry in the articles that are constructed between its smallest, milk bottle caps, and its largest, steam shovels.

Marion has, including articles of machinery, food, conveyances, building materials, clothing and luxuries, variety of 21 maufacturing processes. While the number of concerns manufacturing in Marion is nearly double the number of productions.

A great many of the Marion products are manufactured in more than one Marion concern while a few of the finished articles are found only in one local plant.

Steel Products

Steel and machinery parts appear to have the greater number of the local plants working to its credit. Practically all of the Marion manufacturers deal to some extent with steel.

This is best illustrated by setting as an example the products of the leading Marion factories and manufacturing plants. The premier local companies produce steel castings, bridge parts, taps and dies, steam shovels, tractors, threshers, road rollers, steel bodies, sulkies and wagons.

The few factories which do not produce a steel products, however, are considered important factors in the manufacturing progress of Marion, for the Marion of today is a city of varied industries according to an industrial survey.

Some of the most important non-steel manufacturing plant products in this city are from branch industries as in the case of silk from the Susquehanna Silk Mills and gloves from the Imakeep Glove factory. Other important articles include mattresses, cigars, harnesses, cement blocks, glass wares and food, namely bread, ice cream and potato chips.

The only manufacturer of the city's smallest article, milk bottle caps, is the J. S. Rayl Co., Canby-st. The plant turns out several hundred caps daily on its machines and provides bottle caps for dairies in all sections of the United States as well as in Marion. Printing on the caps is also done at the local factory..

Two Shovel Concerns

Two Marion concerns build the largest product of the city, steam shovels. Both of the companies, The Marion Steam Shovel Co., and the Osgood Co., are rated among the best shovel builders in the world and furnish machines in all parts of the continent. Another local company, The General Excavator Co., builds a smaller shovel with a different design than that of the larger excavators.

Other products of Marion which might rival the steam shovels as the largest of Marion manufactures, could include the threshers of the Huber Manufacturing Co., the huge constructions built by the Fairfield Engineering Co., and the power engines of the Power Manufacturing Co.

Record May Change

With the arrival of the new manufacturing company from Brooklyn, N. Y., The Wilson-Bohannan Co., lock builders, the smallest Marion built article may be made by that company and incidentally replacing the position held by the milk bottle cap. Practically all of the machinery of the new company has arrived and work at the concern will start as soon as it is installed in the new plant on Buckeye-st.

Besides leading in the manufacture of steam shovels, Marion also is the premier city in the construction of racing sulkies. More sulkies are built by the Houghton Sulky Co. and the McMurray Sulky Co. than in any other city in the world. Only a very few of such concerns are found on the globe.

NotedComedianWritesNote to Local Man in Straw Hat

A note scribbled with pencil on the silk lining of a straw hat in Los Angeles, Calif., on May 19, by Charlie Murray, famous moving picture comedian, found its way to the person to whom it was written yesterday when Milt Mooney, Cleveland, walked into the office of E. F. Sharpless, manager of the Grand Theater and handed the manager his hat.

Mr. Mooney, representative in this district for First National Pictures, recently returned from Hollywood where the note was written by the famous comedian during a convention of First National representatives.

The note follows:

"Hello Ed — How's the babies? Charlie Murray."

The babies referred to by Murray are the puppets used by Mr. Sharpless when he was touring the country with his ventriloquist act.

Mr. Sharpless met Murray about 30 years ago in vaudeville and shared programs with him for many years before he retired to engage in the theatrical business in this city. Sharpless was known on the stage as Ed Reynard.

Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is aged for 6 months

IT is in the aging that a magical change is wrought. Just as the forces of Nature ripen to richness the rounding fruits, so this aging produces the marvelous flavor that cannot be found in any other ginger ale.

As great artists mix their colors with patient care and skill to achieve an immortal canvas, so master craftsmen use the water of the Clicquot Spring for the blending of a marvelous flavor. And the long aging away from light and air gives the ingredients, whose quality is higher than the highest government standards, a chance to develop the mellow softness of the Clicquot Club bouquet.

A Sparkling Gift from Nature's Heart—is the pure, clear water of the Clicquot Spring. No purer liquid could flow from time-sealed filters; no human power could match its virtues!

Back of every bottle of Clicquot Club are forty years of craftsmanship—four decades of devotion to the single aim of producing in this distinctive ginger ale a bubbling drink worthy of the favor it has found with millions.

Open it anywhere at any time—the rich Golden or the delicate Pale Dry—and you tap a fountain of delight; you discover a delicious draught made in America, by Americans, for Americans.

Says Bucyrus Will Profit Greatly By Rail Expansion

cussed track building program of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. will be a great benefit to Bucyrus and will add considerably to the status of the city in railroad shipping circles, according to E. J. Songer, secretary of the local chamber of commerce.

Songer explained in an interview today that Bucyrus will profit from the railroad expansion in at least two ways. First, more men will be employed in Bucyrus at the larger yards here and second, Bucyrus shippers will with all other shippers profit from the increased service, especially in fast freight service.

In regard to the larger yards and greater number of employes, Songer stated that railroad officials are telling nothing about their plans. It is believed that the "Y" connecting the main line with the short line enabling the company to inaugurate fast freight service to Toledo and Detroit will be laid just east of Bucyrus. This will mean that new and much larger yards will be constructed here. More yards will mean more men and Songer believes that the number of men employed here, now 86, will be at least doubled.

SENATOR FESS WILL ADDRESS BUCYRUS GROUP

First Evangelical Church To Hold Annual Educational Day

Bucyrus, June 23—United States Senator Simeon D. Fess will give the address at the annual Educational Day exercises at the First Evangelical Church Sunday, according to announcement made by H. E. Cook, superintendent of the Sunday school. Senator Fess is a well known educator, having served as an instructor at Ohio Northern University, Antioch College and Ohio University.

Educational Day exercises are held every year in the church honoring those from the church organization, who are members of the graduating class of Bucyrus High School. The youthful evangelist also led a song session and favored the audience by singing as solos, several hymns written especially for her by well-known composers of religious music.

ARMY PILOTS FORCED DOWN IN HARDIN COUNTY

Damaged Plane Taken to Dayton for Overhauling, Repairs

Kenton, June 23—Two army air pilots, Lieutenant L. E. O'Connor and Sergeant Joseph Biando, experienced narrow escape when they were forced by engine trouble and fuel shortage, to make a hazardous landing of their observation plane in a small field on the Hardin County Home farm, west of here.

They were enroute from Langley Field to Ft Riley, Kan., by way of Dayton, when misfortune overtook them.

The huge plane today is being taken to Dayton by means of auto truck for overhauling and repairs. While passing over Pennsylvania, Lieut. O'Conner said he encountered a heavy rain storm losing his course and instead of passing over Columbus he found himself over Kenton when fuel shortage forced him to land.

The Douglas plane, O-2-C, was damaged when the pilot failed to clear a string of wires in taking off from a field in the eastern part of Pennsylvania. During the world war, Lieut. O'Connor served in the U. S. Infantry but later entered the army air corps being commissioned in 1922. This was his first mishap of any consequence since entering the service, he said.

San Guy Wins Only Stake Event of Marion Race Mee

Takes First Two Heats In 2:18 Trot; Wellworthy, In 2:09 Trot, Thrills Fans

Last Event, 2:07 Pace, Proves Farce When Horses Stage Big Parade Around Track; Rythmic Todd Wins 2:18 Pace

By EDDIE SCHOENLEB
Sports Editor, The Star

SAN GUY with Parshall up, second choice for the event, breezed under the wire in front of the field in two heats and finished fourth in the third yesterday afternoon, to win the 2:18 trot, the only $1000 stake race on the Marion Short Ship Circuit program.

San Guy won over the highly touted Bimpine, the latter finishing sixth in the first two heats and placing fifth in the third. Peter Walnut, driven by Plaxico, emerged from the field in the final heat to take a first place and land second in the event. Best time for the stake was 2:15¼.

2:07 Pace Farce

The well advertised 2:07 pace, designed to be the fastest race of the meet was a farce. Only four horses were entered in the event and the quartet staged a big parade around the center of the track in the first heat, making the mile in 2:18¼. Judges called it no heat because of the slow time.

The next two heats were not much better, although fans were delighted with the performance of Jakie O'Connor, who sailed over the line in front of the favorite, Myrtle Baxter, in both. Time in the last two heats was 2:11¾ and 2:16½.

Judges announced that decision on the drivers' poor showing in the so-called fast event would be reserved until Friday night, following the meet.

About Wellworthy

Wellworthy, the roan gelding from the stables of William McMillen of London, O., under the expert guidance of his owner, furnished the thrill of the day and found a warm spot in the hearts of lovers of the sport, when he ducked out of a pocket on the stretch in the second heat to win the 2:09 trot.

Wellworthy took two straight heats but placed third in the final round. The favorites, Billie Burke and Kentucky Todd Jr., were far behind. The game Wellworthy trailed in fifth place in the first heat until he struck the three-quarter pole and then—it was just too bad for the leaders. Peter Bellwin was nosed out at the finish with Billie Burke finishing third.

It was in the second heat of the same event that McMillen's entry performed in Grand Circuit style to give fans what they wanted. Again trailing the field until the stretch, Wellworthy found himself pocketed between Peter Bellwin on the outside and Kentucky Todd at the pole.

With the crowd going wild, the little team broke through an opening within 50 yards of the finish and "won by a nose."

Rythmic Todd Wins

Rythmic Todd, with King up, was the only favorite to chalk up a victory. It came in the last event, the 2:18 pace, when the horse of first choice sailed home in the first two heats and placed second in the third.

A large crowd witnessed the second day of racing. The meet will close Friday afternoon with three more events.

Music and entertainment was furnished by Murray's Entertainers who have been engaged for the entire program.

MOLLA MALLORY OUT OF WIMBLEDON MEET

BeBtty Nuthall, 16-Year-Old Prodigy, Defeats American Champ

Wimbledon, England, June 23—The old story of the supremacy of youth against age was proven again today.

Mrs. Molla Mallory, American tennis champion and veteran of years on the courts, was knocked out of the Wimbledon championships by 16 year old Betty Nuthall, who is making her first appearance in a major tournament.

Miss Nuthall, a flaxen-haired schoolgirl who has long been regarded as a tennis prodigy, defeated the American champion, 2-6, 6-2, 6-0.

Strategy Wins

Mrs. Mallory's superior strategy and her experience served her well during the first set, which she took after a stiff battle for every game.

In the second set the English girl set a terrific pace and by brilliant play and remarkable speed wore her opponent down. Mrs. Mallory was able to take only two games in the second set and at the end of the set was apparently very tired.

Miss Nuthall, exuding the strength of youth and tasting her first major victory, let go all her reserve in the last set and took the set in love to win the match, thus eliminating Mrs. Mallory from the tournament in which she has figured in the semi-finals or finals for many years.

Radicals always appear to be talking because you don't know that those who don't talk are radicals.

NEW YORK, June 23—Jack Dempsey said today:

"If I were a betting man I would bet all the dough I now possess on myself to beat Sharkey and Tunney. Otherwise I wouldn't be here."

It might be playfully stated right here that William Harrison Dempsey is rated to hold about $2,000,000 more or less and all he has to do to add to that amount by another quarter of a million is to step out and prove the first part of the confident statement quoted above on July 21 t. The cause of all evil or as the boys in the back room call it, "dough" is payable 10 days in advance of that date. If he succeeds in stopping the onward march of the Boston gob, he just naturally kisses himself into another half million pay off with the erudite Mr. Tunney.

When asked by the writer how far he would care to unbutton the roll in a friendly wager on himself he replied, "If I were a betting man I would go the limit because I am satisfied that I am ready for anybody. I weigh about 204 pounds and there isn't a man in the world can say that I am not ready to go as I am."

Looks Good

Dempsey looked good, without looking too good. He produced for visual evidence the sunburn which his press agent gave us all to understand he had accumulated while chopping wood, etc., at his training camp in the California mountains. However street cleaners have been known to break out in a heavy coat of sunburn.

Mr. Jerry Lavadis, otherwise "Jerry the Greek," attached to Mr. Dempsey's payroll for quite some years, and Gus Wilson, Dempsey's trainer, are exuding confidence. Jerry and Gus are all steamed up and could not be accused of reticence in explaining How Dempsey will blast the garrulous one's ambition to see for himself in person just now uneasy lies the head that wears the crown by eliminating Sharkey and his aspirations for that particular adornment now reposing firmly on Gene Tunney's head.

$250,000

It might be said in passing that the guarantee which will equalize $250,000 is the largest ever given to any fighter other than a champion.

A good idea for Wilson, Lavadis, et. al., as well as the rest of us would be to wait until Dempsey steam rollers over Sharkey before we connect his name with Tunney too seriously.

THREE LEAGUE GAMES ON SHOVEL DIAMONDS

Foundrymen, Tool Room and Apprentices Are Winners

Foundrymen, Tool Room and Apprentices were winners last night in the American League games at the Steam Shovel.

The Foundry had little trouble with Electrowms, trimming them 12 to 7. Roush and Coon were the winning batteries.

The General Office was victim of the Tool Room attack. The final score was 3 to 2. Weiss pitched for the Tools while Lasley was the losing hurler.

The Apprentices trounced the Orders, 5 to 2, Joe Ward doing the pitching for the Apprentice nine. LeMasters was on the slab for the Orders.

BUTLER NINE DEFEATS UPPER SANDUSKY, 5-2

Zuspan Allows Only Four Hits as Marion Team Triumphs

Butler's Store recreational ball team avenged the defeat suffered here Monday night at the hands of the Upper Sandusky Banks when it journeyed to that city last night and trimmed the Banks 5 to 2, in a hotly contested fracas.

Zuspan, pitching for Butler's, allowed only four hits and collected three himself from two Upper Sandusky twirlers. Wise started the game on the mound for the Banks but was knocked into the showers before it was all over. Marion received 15 bingles.

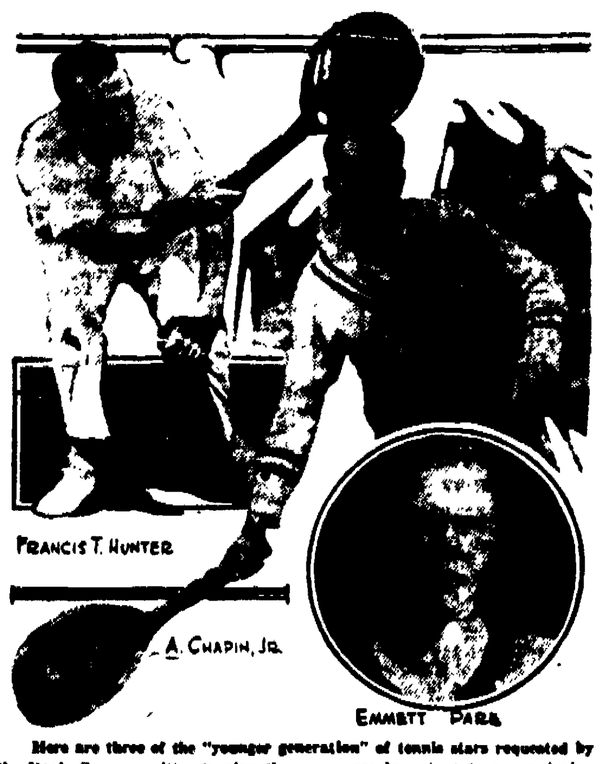
CAN THEY OUST THE VETS?



Here are three of the "younger generation" of tennis stars requested by the Davis Cup committee to play three or more important tourneys during July and August to give the committee a direct line on their game. The others named as Cup possibilities, in addition to the three vets, Tilden, Williams, and Johnston, are Jr. George King, Louis White, John S. Doeg, Edward G. Chandler, and George Lott.

Steam Shovels Nose Out Osgood Outfit; Score, 2-0

THE Marion Steam Shovel Office last night defeated Osgood, 2 to 0, as Bacon won a pitching duel over Toomire in one of the greatest recreational ball games seen here this season. The game had been postponed on two occasions and the sidelines were packed with spectators to see the clash when it was finally played.

Toomire allowed only two hits while Bacon gave five but an error and a three-bagger by Bacon ruined Osgood's hopes in the third frame, when Virden and the Shovel hurler crossed the plate with the only runs of the contest.

Bacon received the only two hits credited to the Shovel team and then struck out on his third trip to the plate. Toomire and Conwell led the Osgood crew with the stick, each getting two hits.

Osgoods Threaten

Osgoods threatened to score in the fifth stanza when Conwell made first on a single and went to third when the umpire ruled a long liner by Toomire only a two base hit. The hit was good for a home run but rolled through other diamonds at the Shovel where the Shovel league games were being played and Toomire was given only two bases. Goodicke walked, filling the sacks, but Sheehe was thrown out and Riddle struck out, retiring the side. The three men died on bases.

Only five men on the Shovel team received three chances at bat and the other four faced Toomire twice. He struck out two while Bacon was credited with six fan outs. Bacon allowed four walks but Toomire did not pass out any free checks.

FOUR OHIOANS AMONG SURVIVORS IN TOURNEY

Cleveland, June 23— Four Ohioans were among the seven survivors in the quarter finals of the state singles tennis tourney here today as the fourth day of play began.

Comprising the quartette were Carl Dennison, Youngstown; Bob Bradley, Toledo; Leonard Keith and Elliott Stearns, Cleveland.

Charles Leslie, Montreal, and Frank Shields and Lewis Bailey, Jr., New York, completed the list.

BABE RUTH CLOUTS TWO MORE HOME RUNS

Yanks Have Nine-Game Lead Over Field in American Loop

New York, June 23—With eight straight victories to their credit and a nine-game lead over the field, and Babe Ruth exactly even with his 1921 home run record, the New York Yankees are sitting on top of the baseball world today. The Bambino hit his 23rd and 24th homers of the season yesterday in the first of two games with the Red Sox, it being the third time he has smacked a pair of home runs in one game this season.

The Yanks won 7 to 4 and 3 to 2, with Wiley Moore, their official pallbearer, saving both games. Losing the nightcap was tough taffy for Charlie Ruffing, the Red Sox twirler, as he was tagged for only three hits. Buddy Myer, Sox shortstop, presented all three runs to the champs by muffing a fly and hearing two balls at a peanut vendor in the stands.

Al Simmons of the Athletics clouted two homers in one game for the second time this season as the A's trimmed the Senators, 13 to 7. In the opener Horace Lisenbee, Washington's 19 year-old phenom, faced the Mackmen for the first time and with the aid of four hits by Bucky Harris, beat them 4 to 2 for his ninth victory. Jimmy Dykes of the A's collected five hits and is now outhatting every regular in the league except Gehrig.

Staging two five-run rallies, the Pirates took an 11 to 9 slugfest from the Reds. Eight pitchers labored in the vineyard and all plucked nothing but sour grapes.

The Cardinals stayed with the pace by drubbing the slipping Cubs, 11 to 3. Alexander the Great pitched out of turn at his own request and did very well save for a momentary lapse when Hack Wilson, premier National League home run hitter, walloped his 14th homer with two on. Frisch got three hits and passed Rogers Hornsby in the batting race.

COLUMBUS GOLFER AT HEAD OF QUALIFIERS

Dayton, June 23—Denamore Shute, of Columbus, whose consistent shooting during the two-day 36-hole qualifying round placed him at the head of the qualifying 32, with a score of 147, was to tee off paired with James Carpenter, Cleveland, in the first day of match play of the Ohio State Amateur tournament at Miami Valley Country Club here this morning.

Steam Shovels Will Clas With Robbins-Myers Nine Athletics Play Keystone

Shovel Team To Open Season Saturday Afternoon on Sho Grounds; Columbus Team Comes to Lincoln Park Sunday

MARION baseball fans will be treated to two games over the coming week-end.

The Marion Steam Shovel baseball outfit will open its season with the Robbins-Myers team of Springfield at the Steam Shovel diamond, Incapherar, Saturday afternoon, and the Marion Athletics will tie up with the Columbus Keystone nine, a colored team, at Lincoln Park, Sunday afternoon.

Both opposing teams named are considered among the best in the state. The Robbins-Myers outfit went to the semi finals in the national semi-pro tournament at Philadelphia last year and has not lost a game so far this season. The Columbus Keystone last week annexed two more to their long list of victories.

Finally Started

The Steam Shovel team has had a tough time getting started because of unfavorable weather each Saturday afternoon. The Shovels were to open the season three weeks ago against the same team but were forced to cancel when a cloudburst descended.

John Rife may start on the mound for the Shovels. His work has been displayed on two occasions this season with the Rincos. Those who saw him in action last Sunday at Lincoln Park know that he has plenty of smoke. Gassman and several others are also on the pitching staff. Bacon, Rizor, Price Ward, Rogers, Conroy, and a number of other well-known players will complete the Marion lineup.

Lucas with Springfield

The Robbins-Myers crew will have Lucas, formerly of the Three-I League, on the mound. Others will be practically the same as they were last year when the Springfield outfit went to the National tourney.

The Columbus Keystones have with them a second "Babe Ruth", according to statistics garnered from box scores of the two games last week. Womack, the first sacker received three circuit clouts in the two games.

Kimbro or Wallace, both considered great hurlers in the Capital City, will do the slab work. Circus is booked for the catching position. Biles, Dennison, and Galloway make up the outfield and Womack, Johnson, Jefferson, and Lee complete the lineup in the infield.

Several of the Keystones were formerly with the Homestead Grays, it is reported.

Battle Promised

The Marion team has been going during the last few games and with a lineup that can hit and field equally as well, the Keystones should furnish plenty of entertainment for enthusiasts Sunday.

Main and Brashears will be the local battery.

The Saturday game at the Steam Shovel will be called at 3 o'clock. Sunday's contest will start at 2 o'clock as usual. Macken will umpire the Keystone clash.

MARION-DELAWARE-RD WORK MOVING RAPIDLY

Expect To Complete Strip in Front of Harding Memorial in Two Weeks

Rapid progress is now being made with construction of the Marion-Delaware rd. improvement between this city and Norton and the Harding memorial section of the highway south of the city will probably be completed within the next two weeks, Grover C. Snyder, division engineer of the state highway department said today.

The base of the Harding memorial section will be completed by Saturday, according to present plans and the asphalt surface will then be laid. Spreading of the asphalt is expected to require only a few days' work.

The Harding memorial section, which extends a distance of about 1,300 feet south of the corporation line will then be opened for traffic permitting tourists as well as local motorists to view the Harding tomb site without difficulty or interference.

P. Drake & Son, local contracting firm, is building the memorial section of the road.

Work of pouring concrete on the remainder of the highway from the memorial section to Norton was completed yesterday and laying of the second base course will start at once. The entire improvement which is about 11 miles in length, will not be completed and open to traffic before fall, highway officials say.

The general contract is in charge of L. L. Allen.

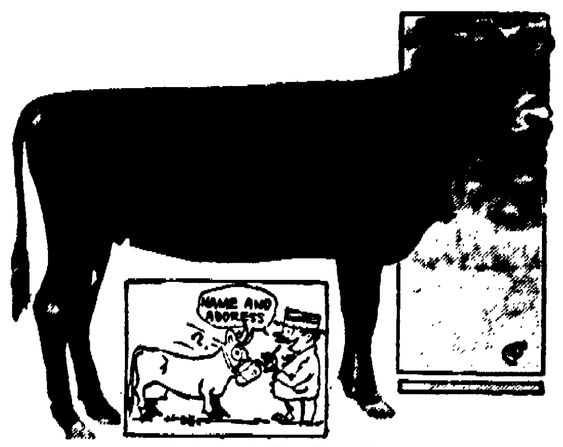
SHE'S THE MILLIONTH JERSEY



St. Saviour's Blue Fox's Bess

CLIFTON, S. C., June 23—To a South Carolina man, who placed his faith in dairying and who has been successful in building up an outstanding purebred herd from a modest beginning, goes the honor of registering the millionth Jersey in the United States. He is L. E. Wright, cattle raiser, of Clifton.

The millionth registered Jersey is St. Saviour's Blue Fox's Bess, which Wright has just registered with the American Jersey Cattle Club at New York City. Bess is one of 13 animals produced since 1921, when the cattle raiser purchased one purebred heifer. From this small beginning Wright has built up a fine herd, which is attracting much attention in the south.

Bess is a young daughter of the foundation cow of the herd. Her registry number is 739,709, for there have been 200,201 Jersey bulls registered in addition to the females. According to cattle experts, Bess symbolizes success in cattle raising and marks a milestone in the progress of better dairying in the United States.

Relatives of the millionth Jersey have been demonstrating their quality in state affairs. Wright presented his little daughter, Sarah, with a great granddaughter of the foundation cow so that she might become a member of the Spartanburg County Jersey Calf club. The heifer preceded to take first place at the South Carolina State fair, and also first honors in the open classes at the county fair.

Another heifer, sold to a calf club boy by the cattle raiser, won third at the state fair, second at the calf club show, and first prize at the showing contest.

According to the American Jersey Cattle Club the registrations of Jerseys in the United States have shown an average annual increase of 9.7 per cent since 1904.

THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

A dramatic story of love and war

Tears, thrills and laughter—there is plenty of each—in "THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER"—the big war drama which was shown with signal success last evening to capacity audiences. It will be shown again tonight and tomorrow, being held over an extra day. The reaction of the audiences, their mingled smiles and tears, was evidence that the director had achieved a happy effect with a mighty subject. It is unlike any war picture that was ever made. For each sob there is a smile, for each tear a laugh.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

not sleep so very good last ... swiped a piece of Feeble's ... took it home with me, and ... up in bed I put it in my ... I thought maybe if I sucked ... and careful I could get the ... of the pepper, and I ... was doing pretty good at it ... but the first thing I knew ... began to get in its work. ... to warm up, and it seemed ... feel my tonsils curling up. ... smell smoke from my shirt ... and then I had to go ... to the kitchen for a drink. ... once in a while I had to go ... I didn't tell the humon this ... morn. I had let Jubilee down ... and the dammed bruten. ... everything I could get for ... but my tongue still felt like ... of dried beef.

... we had got the cows in the ... we all went down to the damn ... Mississippi floods, and the pond ... and we made a raft of rail- ... with boards nailed across ... the Lost Bag of Tripe and ... Maggie and Feeble got on ... and I put it out in the middle and ... swung for hold and we told ... they there and we would help ... we made out like we was ... airplanes and boats, and ... cided that the water was go- ... and we would save them, so ... gate open and let the water ... the first thing they knowed ... in the middle of where the ... been and the water was all ... they were in a lake of buttery ... about two feet deep and black.

... they wanted us to rescue we ... they could walk ashore as ... we could walk out there, and we borrowed them and all at once Feeble gave the Lost Bag of Tripe a push that sent him on his stummick off the raft, and he planted her with both hands full of mud and she jumped off of the raft onto him and then both went down in the mud, and she grabbed him by the hair and almost scalped him in the mud, and then the rest of us rolled up our britches and waded out and made chairs with our hands and carried Maggie and Youngun to shore. Only Nibs and Pickles who were carrying Maggie dropped her, so her and Feeble were disgraced and had to go home and get cleaned up, and we made a fire and washed and dried the Lost Bag of Tripe and lost his shirt, and then we played ball.

She almost smothered him in the mud

It was a pretty good day. The Lost Bag of Tripe is going to have a sofa water stand tomorrow

Peter's Adventures

A Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WINNING WITHOUT A BLOW

"Ha! ha! Hee! Hee! Ho!"

Porcupine laughed so hard that ... one of his bristles quivered with ... merriment. Peter looked at him ... that he was being made fun ... He felt himself growing red about ... ears.

"I don't see the joke myself, Porky," ... crossly. "What did I do then ... think is so funny?"

"It wasn't what you did but what ... said!" declared Porcupine as well ... could for laughing. "You re- ... that when an enemy crept

"OH! YOU YELL AND PAW AT YOUR NOSE AND EYES AND THROAT."

... me to scare him off I threw a ... at him. Oh, dear me! Threw a ... at him!"

"Well, don't you?" demanded Peter ... indignant by this time.

"No, I should say not!" declared Porcupine and chuckled more heartily ... before. "I couldn't throw a quill ... save my neck, not even if I knew ... I was to be gobbled up whole the ... next minutes."

"But you said yourself, just a few ... ago, but your quills protected ... that you hated to hurt folks with ... but when they came too close to ... you had to. Now, you tell me ... you can't throw them." The boy ... puzzled.

"Well, what of it?" Porcupine wink- ... bright eye at his companion. "If ... can't throw my quills I can let them ... and that answers the same pur- ..."

"How?" asked Peter. "What can ... mean?"

"Just this," answered Porky, who ... every bit as anxious to have the ... understand as Peter was himself. "I ... you, you will remember, that my ... were my armor—they do pro- ... me, so that there are only very ... foes whom I fear. . Now suppose ... you were one of the great cruel ... Feet that prowls about in the ... seeking whom he might devour— ... seems to every creature smaller ... himself—and you saw me.

"Ah!" you. 'A little Four-Foot ... all alone! I have nothing better to do. I guess I will creep like a shadow and spring upon him from the darkness and kill him just for fun.' Besides I haven't had anything to eat lately and he might make a good meal.'

"Pad, pad, paddypaw! You come stalking toward me in the night. You step on a dry leaf. It crackles and although I cannot see you my ears are sharp and I know the sound brings me a warning and I smell an enemy. Do I run? Not. I curl myself up into a ball and stay where I am, just as still as a mouse. Nearer and nearer you keep. At last you are so close to me that should I flatten myself out I could poke you with my nose. But I know better than to do anything like that. I stay curled up. Then, swish! Thud! You, my enemy, in one bound are upon me, seizing my body in your cruel jaws. But you let me drop as though I were a coal of fire. "Ow, ow, ow!" you yell and start pawing at your mouth and nose and eyes. "I have a thousand pins sticking in me. I am being scratched to pieces!" Then I unfurl myself and run off into the shadows, knowing you will never follow me. You are too busy trying to get the quills that I have loosened when you pounced upon me out of your poor aching, torn body. But you will have a terrible time of it. Each quill is barbed and the more you dig at it the deeper will it work into your flesh! And, if the pain does not cost you your life you will learn a lesson. Never again will you spring upon a ball of bristles in the night."

Next: "A Long Distance Friend."

CREDIT

It's Use And Abuse

The wise man uses his credit but is careful not to get in too deep.

Sometimes misfortune puts a man in a position where it is hard for him to make his payment on all of his bills.

Our business is lending money and allowing it to be repaid in monthly payments. Maybe this would solve your problem.

TO RULE ON NOTES

Judge Jones To Act on Admissibility of Letters in Murder Case

Cleveland, June 23—Federal Judge Paul Jones was to rule today regarding the admissibility of letters which defense counsel attempted to offer in evidence late Wednesday, in the trial of Ernest Frederick, charged with the murder of Walter Holcomb, Warren butcher, in the Warren postoffice, last February.

The letters, said to have been written by Frederick and found on his person, following the fatal shooting, were to be introduced in an effort to prove that Frederick was insane at the time, according to Jay Buchsalter, attorney for the accused.

U. S. District Attorney A. E Bernstees this morning planned to continue his attack upon the insanity testimony offered by the defense. Two alienists are at hand to swear Frederick is not now insane, Bernstees said.

PRICE DECLINE FAILS TO GAIN MUCH MOMENTUM

Baldwin Locomotive Most Important of Few Stocks Receiving Attention

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
Railroad stocks steady. Industrial stocks irregular. Domestic bonds steady. Foreign bonds fairly steady. Call money four per cent. Grain irregular. Copper irregular. Oil irregular. Cotton easy. Rubber strong. Sugar irregular. Foreign exchange irregular.

New York, June 23—Most of the speculative stocks under pressure today received strong support in the form of investment or professional buying, and the decline which appeared to be in full swing in the forenoon failed to get very much momentum. Sharp recessions in the first hour were attributed mostly to the uncovering of stop-loss orders. When these were out of the way the market continued to give a good account of itself, with pools whipping up the prices of Baldwin, Mack Trucks and other speculative favorites.

The general character of the market was practically unchanged from that of the three previous sessions of the week The volume of trading has now definitely settled back to less than 2,000,000 shares daily, which is accounted for, at least partially, by the exit of a number of large traders from Wall Street to vacation resorts.

The "play" of the professionals has been narrowed down to a small number of stocks, of which Baldwin Locomotive is perhaps the most important. This stock, which is said to harbor a large short interest, is increasingly difficult to borrow and a corner is believed to exist in the stock, with Chicago operators said to be in control A new four point advance to 229½ was easily brought about Meanwhile, it is said that the stock exchange committees are keeping in close touch with its market movements.

PLANE NOT TO GET AWAY TILL FRIDAY MORNING

Weather Conditions Hold Up Transatlantic Flier; Byrd Grows Impatient

Roosevelt Flying Field Mineola, N. Y., June 23—With a tinge of impatience in his voice, Commander Richard E. Byrd said today that the giant silver and gold monoplane America will not hop off for Paris before 4 o'clock tomorrow morning, if then.

Dangerous storm conditions over the north Atlantic is holding up the take-off, and the situation is beginning to get on the nerves of the even tempered, gentle-mannered Byrd and his three associates, Bert Acosta, the pilot, Lieut. George Noville, and Lieut. Lernt Balchen.

"It is barely possible that we will hop off at dawn Friday but I'd bet 10 to one against it," said Byrd, regretfully.

"When the weather man says go, we'll go."

With an imploring smile, Byrd suggested that the newspapers desist in making it appear that the flight is imminent.

In Interest of Science

"Put the soft pedal on the probable time of the hop off," were Byrd's words. "The weather is beginning to make a book of all such predictions."

James H. Kimball, United States meteorologist on whom Byrd is relying for weather data, has recommended to Byrd that he postpone the flight until conditions clear up, which may take 24 hours, or longer.

"This flight is different," said Kimball. "It's in the interest of science. There is no race, no flying for a purse."

Byrd also makes plain this angle, reiterating his eagerness to be off "at the proper time."

Gets Chamberlin Cable

The commander was pleased when a cablegram was delivered to him which was sent by Clarence Chamberlin, the New York to Germany flier, who messaged him through International News Service suggesting he obtain the local European weather forecasts of the Hamburg weather bureau if Byrd is aiming to go to central Europe. Chamberlin also said in his cablegram that it is "important to avoid fog in Europe on account of the mountains he would encounter if he goes as far as central Europe." He advised Byrd's pilot trying to fly blind through high fogs "as we wasted much time and gas in this matter." He wished Byrd "the best of luck."

Through International News Service, Byrd sent this reply:

"Clarence Chamberlin: Deeply grateful to you for information which will prove of much value to me.

"Signed Commander Richard E. Byrd."

Real philosophy teaches a man not to feel so important in a world where billions on billions have lived and died before him.

KADGAR GROTTO BAND TO BE HONORED AT MEET

Will Play at Cleveland-Detroit Ball Game Thursday, June 30

That Kadgar Grotto band of this city will have a place of outstanding prominence at the annual convention of the Mystic Order, Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, was indicated today when it was announced that it has been selected as one of the four bands which will play at American League baseball games in Cleveland on two of the convention days.

The four bands were selected from 150 which will attend the convention.

Kadgar Grotto band will play at the Cleveland-Detroit game on Thursday afternoon, June 30, giving a program in conjunction with one of the other bands selected. The two other bands will play at the game Friday.

Kadgar Grotto band, consisting of 50 musicians and recognized as one of the best fraternal musical organizations in the state, plays under the direction of E. M. Whelpley of Delaware. Mr. Whelpley is teacher of music in the Delaware schools.

Notice of the local band's selection for the baseball game entertainments was received today by Walter S. Guthrie, monarch of Kadgar Grotto, in a letter from the general committee in charge of convention arrangements at Cleveland.

The Marion convention delegation, accompanied by the band, will go to Cleveland June 28 on a special car attached to a regular Big Four train, and will take part in the convention program during the following three days.

CITY BUILDING BOOMING, CLAIM OF TRADESMEN

Demand for Carpenters Is Growing Steadily, Union Heads Are Told

Building operations in Marion are booming, according to delegates of the building grades, represented last night at the regular meeting of the Marion Central Labor Union at Red Men's hall, S. Main st.

Many new members are being taken into the carpenters' association, it was reported, as demand for men of that trade is received.

John J. Zuck, general chairman of the Hocking Valley Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, reported several new local men in the employ of that railroad who have entered the union here. Clarence A. Bohn, local organizer for the American Federation of Labor, announced that machinists and boilermakers are being well organized here.

Hayes Maynard of the car men's organization, spoke of progress in shop crafts while Marion labor leaders praised radio station WCFL, Chicago, for broadcasting an hour dedicated to labor each night.

Refer To Lindbergh

Reference was made at the meeting last night of the splendid labor record of Col. Charles Lindbergh's father, in view of the fact that the son is being highly honored for his achievements in the air.

For 10 years, 1907-17, the elder Lindbergh represented a Minnesota district in the House of Representatives. During this time he spoke and voted for three child labor bills; backed the Hughes amendment forbidding the prosecution of labor organizations under the anti-trust act; favored workmen's compensation, and backed employes liability.

The next meeting of the Marion Central Labor Union will be held Wednesday, July 6.

CAR ARRIVES

Oakland Machine on Durability Test Run Here

After traveling for a total of 103,608 miles in 46 states and visiting 409 large cities in more than one year, an Oakland sedan stock car from the Oakland Car Co., of Pontiac, Mich., arrived unexpectedly in Marion last night on a tour of the United States.

The car stopped in front of the Hildebrandt Sales Co., at 9:05 o'clock from Mansfield and five minutes later started for Columbus where it will be driven to Michigan.

The car was driven alternately by two men who are attempting to set a durability record for the Oakland car. They started in the car from the factory Jan. 9, 1926 with orders from the officials of the company to drive the machine until it could not be driven further. A total of $188.40 has been spent for repairs on the machine during the run so far, it is claimed.

A large speedometer mounted on the top of the car tells the number of miles the car was driven.

RACE DRIVER REPORTS THEFT OF AUTOMOBILE

W. H. Parshal, race horse owner, a guest at the Hotel Marion, reported to the police early this morning that some one had stolen his Chevrolet coupe. He was unable to furnish the police with license number or a description of the missing car, other than that his initials and a horses head was painted on each door. An effort is being made by the police to locate the car.

FINAL STEPS IN BORER DRIVE BEING TAKEN

Expect Campaign To End with Last Inspections on July 10

With the final step in the prevention of the European Corn Borer in Marion County now in progress, all work on the project to keep the borer from spreading to this locality is expected to be accomplished by July 10, by Perle Johnson, supervisor, of Kenton.

Final inspections of the county farms are being made at the present time and the farmers are getting paid regularly for the work on their own farms.

Every Marion county farmer who had corn acreage last year, were ordered to take special care of the field this year in order to stop the spread of the corn borer.

Receive Maximums

A majority of the 300 Marion farmers already paid by the government for the work, have received the maximum amount alloted to the farmers who put their fields in good shape. Fields where corn grew last year, when cared for according to instructions of the government derive a sum of $2 an acre to the worker.

Inspectors are on hand to check up the work accomplished by the farmer on his farm and pays that individual accordingly. When less pains in caring for the fields are taken, the lower is the average for each acre when estimated by the inspector.

The United States government requests that the farmer plow the old held bout the wheat stubble, pole or break down the stalks before plowing, or rake the stalks by machine and burn them. In order to get the maximum payment for each acre, the barnyards and barns must also be cleaned from trash and rubbish, according to Supervisor Johnson.

Seven Inspectors

Seven inspectors are now working in the county estimating and inspecting the fields cared for by the farmers. About 18 men are now working as pick ups along the streams and creeks in the county ridding them of all rubbish.

At the first order all weedy corn and oats fields of last year are to be plowed up and cleaned of possible breeding places of the borer. A recent amendment to the order made the wheat and oats fields optional for cleaning while the corn fields had to be cared for by the farmer or by the borer officials, with or without the permission of the owner of the land.

PATRICK G. FERGUS, 34, IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Believe Accidents Partially Responsible; Funeral To Be Held Saturday

Patrick Gilbert Fergus, 34 died at 8:15 o'clock last night at the home in which he was born, 196½ N. Main st. He had been in ill health for six years, although his death was hastened by two accidents during the last winter, it is believed. He had sustained a broken right hip in March when he fell at his home and in December he suffered a broken right ankle from a fall on the ice.

Mr. Fergus was born here Oct. 17, 1892, and had made his home in Marion practically all of his life. He had been employed as a telegraph operator at the Hocking Valley Railroad Co. until the time of his illness. Previous to that time he was employed in the same capacity at the Western Union Telegraph Office. He was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Mary Fergus, formerly Miss Mary Butler, and a sister, Miss Kathryn Fergus, at home. His father, Edward Fergus, preceded him in death 15 years ago and a sister a number of years ago.

Funeral services will probably be held Saturday from St. Mary's Church. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. The body will remain at the home until funeral time.
